

Army Says McCarthy Releases Secret Data, Violating Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army said today Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) disclosed restricted information, violation of law, when he released excerpts from an intelligence report on Siberia and said he lifted portions out of context to pin a "Red" label on the military document.

McCarthy showed reporters photographic copies of 70 pages of the 75-page document on Wednesday, contending it smacked of "clear cut Communist propaganda."

McCarthy acted as chairman of the Senate investigations subcommittee which has been looking into Army security.

This could pose questions of congressional rights in relation to the law. And in any event, it is improbable a charge of violating the law as to restricted documents would be pressed against any member of Congress in such circumstances.

However, unauthorized release of restricted information is a violation of law punishable by up to $10,000 fine and 10 years imprisonment.

The Army said the document was intended for limited distribution to intelligence officers "to develop understanding of the Soviet people which will be militarily useful in case of war."

"It is obvious that the necessary instruction of officers and men in this field cannot proceed without attempting to enter the mind and thought processes of the Soviet citizen."

An Army spokesman showed reporters an original copy of the document containing on the inside cover this notation:

"This document contains information affecting the national defense of the United States within the meaning of espionage laws, Title 18, Section 793 and 794. The transmission or the revelation of its contents in any manner to an unauthorized person is prohibited by law."

The Army said it declassified the document from its restricted status yesterday but emphasized this was done "as a result of prior disclosure" by McCarthy.

"Restricted" is the lowest of several secrecy classifications the military places on documents.

The Army statement contended McCarthy had withheld from his releases sections which would have made clear the document was not Communist propaganda.

It said the conclusion, on Pages 74 and 75 of the original document, declared in part that the Soviet citizen lives and works almost like a convict. These pages were not released by the senator.

The Army statement quoted the document as saying:

"As was noted previously, such an existence would be intolerable to Americans. American traditions and beliefs militate against every facet of government activity in the U. S. S. R. British and American Communist sympathizers who visit the U. S. S. R. nearly always return in bitter disillusionment. There is no better antidote for radicalism."

The statement said the document, entitled "Psychological and Cultural Traits of Soviet Siberia," was intended for limited distribution to intelligence officers "to develop understanding of the Soviet people which will be militarily useful in case of war."

At the Capitol, McCarthy, told newsmen he had received a copy of the Army statement.

"Neither the Army nor any other branch of government is going to hide dishonesty, corruption or communism by putting a 'secret' label on it," he said.

"If they are putting out Communist propaganda, they can't keep it from the public by stamping it 'secret' or 'restricted' and calling it an indoctrination course."

"This subcommittee has been very careful not to release anything that would jeopardize the security of this nation. We have leaned over backwards on that."

The Army statement described the document as intended "for the use and education of a limited number of officers and men specializing in the thought patterns of the Soviet citizen."

Red Reporter Admits Enemy Holding POWs

Communists Say Men Mostly Airmen Who 'Violated' Manchuria

PANMUNJOM (AP)—A Red source admitted today for the first time that the Communists are holding back some Allied war prisoners who want to go home.

A Communist correspondent, Wilfred Burchett, said a crack U. S. jet pilot and an undisclosed number of other Allied airmen are being held as special prisoners because the Communists say they were shot down over Manchuria, forbidden territory to Allied pilots in the Korean War.

A repatriated American Air Force major, David F. MacGhee of Tampa, Fla., said earlier this week he had learned from an "extremely reliable" Chinese Red that the Communists planned to intern 22 U. S. fliers in Manchuria "until the United States recognizes Red China."

Allied officers have said unofficially there may be other airmen still held by the Communists and one source said the number totaled about 35.

JAN HAJDUKIEWICZ, Polish truce team official who bolted to freedom at a Korean airfield and won political asylum under American protection, tells a news conference (above) in Seoul that he deserted his Red comrades because the Communist rule of Poland is "based on fear." The Communists have accused the United States Army of "kidnaping" him.

Burchett of the Paris L'Humanite

Burchett said release of the airmen would have to be negotiated through "diplomatic channels," but he did not elaborate.

The Allied Command demanded Wednesday that the Reds account for about 3,500 allied troops—944 of them Americans—who were known once to be prisoners, but who were not released in the recent POW exchange.

The Communists have indicated they would reject the demand, but have not said when they would reply officially.

Fischer, who disappeared last April 7, became one of the hottest pilots in Korea by scoring his radar gunship and shooting down Red MIG jets like ducks.

The Red Peiping radio said April 9 the 27-year-old flier was captured.

Patrol Officer Honored For Grabbing Pair

COLUMBUS (AP)—An Ohio Highway Patrol corporal who risked his life to capture two Lima State Hospital fugitives today became the 15th patrol officer to receive the O. W. Merrell Meritorious Service Award.

He is Cpl. Raymond H. Opp, a native of Forest, Hardin County, now assigned to the Wilmington headquarters of the patrol.

The award, an inscribed .38 special target pistol, was presented the corporal in a brief ceremony in the offices of Col. George Mingle, patrol superintendent.

The annual award was originated by O. W. Merrell when he was director of highways in 1933, organization year for the patrol.

The incident for which Cpl. Opp was honored took place July 15, 1952, while the officer was assigned to Sidney. The two hospital fugitives had been trapped in a water tender of a mail train.

Tear gas failed to force the two from the tender and the fugitives declared they would not be taken alive.

Police at the scene decided to fill the tender with water in an effort to dislodge the fugitives. Cpl. Opp ordered the flooding stopped when the water reached a few inches from the top and the escapees still refused to surrender.

He had the tank drained. Then, putting aside his weapons, Cpl. Opp entered the tank in which the water was still knee deep. After a 15-minute battle among the steel baffles and pipes criss-crossing the interior of the tender, the fugitives were subdued, handcuffed and removed.

Political Scientist Claims Solons Push Ike Too Much

WASHINGTON (AP)—The American Political Science Association was told today that the Eisenhower administration has become disorganized by letting Congress move in on White House authority.

Dr. Herman M. Somers, chairman of the Haverford (Pa.) College's department of political science, had both praise and criticism for the administrative policies of the Republican regime.

He observed that the broad lines of administrative action to date have been "thoughtful and sound." On the other hand, he commented, there has been "a dramatic net decline in the role and leadership of the executive which has had a stunning effect on the bureaucracy."

The latter condition has come about, Somers said, by either the "abdication to Congress, or the permitted usurpation by Congress of executive authority, which has been the source of basic difficulties for the executive branch."

IKE-LABOR SPLIT SEEN AS DURKIN QUILTS POST

Durkin Bow-Out Rings Down Curtain On Eisenhower's Bold Labor Stroke

WASHINGTON (AP)—Martin P. Durkin's sudden bow-out as secretary of labor rang down the curtain in less than eight months on a bold political stroke attempted by President Eisenhower.

Democrats predicted the administration would not find another man with a strong union background to take the post. Republicans, for the most part, had little to say about the sudden turn.

One Democratic senator, Maybank of South Carolina, said he "would seriously suggest that others in the Cabinet resign."

Sen. Hill (D-Ala.), a long-time member of the Senate Labor Committee, said:

"They'll never get another Marty Durkin for the job. They'll have to take someone now who is willing to march in the ranks of the Taft-Hartleys."

This reference to the controversial Taft-Hartley labor relations law struck at the heart of Durkin's falling out with the administration.

not done anything for labor, for agriculture or for the taxpayer."

Asked if his suggestion about other resignations was aimed at Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, Maybank said Benson has "done nothing except create confusion in the farm belt" and Humphrey raised interest rates "for veterans and homeowners."

Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.) said that although Durkin hails from his state, "any comment I would make on his resignation would be a shot in the dark."

However, Rep. Kearns (R-Pa.), a member of the House Labor Committee, said he thought Durkin's ideas for changing Taft-Hartley were "too self-styled."

"Amendments to the Taft-Hartley law will be written here in Congress," Kearns said.

Democratic National Chairman Stephen Mitchell commented:

"It is now obvious that the appointment was one of political expediency rather than a sincere effort by the administration to solve the problems of working people."

Sen. Kilgore (D-WVa.), described Durkin's position "in the Republican big-business administration" as "like an ambassador to a foreign court."

"Yes, a union man was appointed secretary of labor and you can count the friends of labor in the new administration on one finger."

But one veteran observer of doings on Capitol Hill, who declined to be identified, declared:

"The more hard-boiled Republicans do not anticipate any loss of popular support among the mass of voters because of the organized-labor leaders' decision to fight the Eisenhower Administration and the GOP generally."

"They do not believe that the vast majority of workingmen and their families are influenced too deeply by the attitudes and pronouncements of their professional union bosses. There is a great gap between the political hierarchy and the 17 million union members."

"They note that, although the three great labor organizations joined behind a Democratic candidate solidly in last year's campaign for the first time, President Eisenhower carried every industrial state and industrial city. He even won in John L. Lewis' usually well-disciplined mining areas. They also have the late Senator Taft's unprecedented majority in Ohio in 1950 as further evidence."

"If Ike can retain his popularity by wise action, and especially if peace and prosperity continue, White House advisers see no reason for concern over the labor leaders' defection."

Cabinet Aide Says Pledges Are Broken

Resignation Revealed By Angry Secretary; President Is Silent

WASHINGTON (AP)—An uneasy political honeymoon between President Eisenhower and organized labor appeared ended today with the angry resignation of Martin P. Durkin as secretary of labor.

Durkin, a union leader and a Democrat, quit his Cabinet post with a charge that the Eisenhower administration had broken an agreement with him on recommendations to be made in changing the Taft-Hartley labor law.

Presidents George Meany of the AFL and Walter Reuther of the CIO quickly sided with Durkin and accused Eisenhower of failing to live up to promises made to organized labor.

There was no comment from Eisenhower, outside of a letter accepting Durkin's resignation and praising his service as secretary.

Thus the President faces the task of picking two men to fill highly important government posts—a chief justice to succeed Fred M. Vinson and a secretary of labor to replace Durkin.

New A-Weapon--'Dust Bomb' Could Cripple Entire Nation

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—A terrible, but still undeveloped new atomic weapon—a "dust bomb"—someday may be used to render the food supply of whole nations useless.

This is the disclosure of a University of Arizona biochemist after 2½ years of secret research.

Dr. Wallace H. Fuller, working on special assignment for the Atomic Energy Commission, said the fantastically powerful new force could be produced from radioactive strontium.

"It could cripple the food supply of large areas of land," Fuller said, adding:

"Conceivably, it might rival even the deadly cobalt bomb as a weapon of war."

the form of dust and it would contaminate crops, lands and water supplies.

"RADIOACTIVE strontium could be introduced into the human or animal body by many means, by contaminated water, directly contaminated food crops or by food crops grown in contaminated soil."

"If animals should eat forage, such as grasses or alfalfa, that contain radio-strontium, the radio-activity would concentrate in their bones."

"If large enough concentrations were available, blood-forming cells would be eliminated or injured. Radiation sickness or death would result."

"In cows or goats, the radio-strontium would concentrate in the milk that is used for human consumption. In this way the lethal radiation might be transferred to man."

"Man also could get it by consuming leafy vegetables as well as other plants."

The funeral service was brief with no eulogy and few flowers. It was held with the Rev. Charles Perry officiating. He also spoke the final words at the Pine Hill cemetery on a hill overlooking Louisa.

Federal Jury Ponders Fate Of Hupman

DAYTON (AP)—A federal court jury is expected to decide today whether Everett Melvin Hupman was a member of the Communist party when he signed a non-Communist affidavit in 1949.

Judge Lester Cecil recessed the jury last night when a technical question cropped up after about four hours deliberation.

The government charged Hupman signed the non-Communist affidavit while an official of the CIO United Electrical and Radio Maintenance Workers Union.

The jury wanted to know if the affidavit was legal inasmuch as it had not been signed by a notary public. Cecil told the jury "you're too tired to go into it now" and halted proceedings until morning.

Two men who testified they had been FBI undercover agents working within the Communist party received a bonus from the city of Miami, Fla., yesterday—a vacation invitation. In offering the invitation, the city told Roger E. Dunham of Clarksville and Arthur Strunk of Dayton it was a reward for "tedious and dangerous" service to the United States.

August Drought Keeps Corn Off List Slated For Control

WASHINGTON (AP)—Hot dry weather during August kept the vital corn crop from moving into a surplus supply class along with wheat, cotton, tobacco, and peanuts requiring rigid federal controls to cut back production next year.

An Agriculture Department crop report yesterday trimmed 114 million bushels, or about 3½ per cent, off the agency's previous forecast for corn, the major grain used in the production of meat animals, milk and poultry.

This reduction, putting corn at 3,216,000,000 bushels, kept supplies of the grain below a level which, under farm law, would have required Secretary of Agriculture Benson to invoke rigid marketing quotas on the 1954 crop.

Quotas already have been set up for wheat and tobacco and appear likely for cotton and peanuts.

Less restrictive planting allotments probably will be applied to corn next year, however. Farmers are free to ignore allotments, but only those complying with them are eligible for government price support aid.

The department said production of livestock feed grains will be less than in five of the last seven years, but larger than is usually consumed in a season. With large reserves from past crops, supplies will be ample.

The livestock feed supply will be unevenly distributed, however. Drought areas of the Midwest, Southwest and South will be short again as they were last season.

It is possible that use of feed grains during the season ahead will be larger than in most recent years because dairy and beef cattle pastures are providing less feed than normal. In fact, the condition of pastures on Sept. 1 was said to be the poorest for the date in 17 years.

As a consequence, many farmers have been forced to turn to hay and grains for feed much earlier in the fall season than normal.

The department said downturns in production prospects for corn, soybeans, spring wheat, oats, barley, flaxseed, hay, potatoes, tobacco and most fruits lowered the prospective total crop volume to the third largest of record instead of the second forecast in August.

This lower volume is still ample to meet all prospective demands.

agreement is reached the parties abide by it," Meany said. "Mr. Durkin is schooled in that tradition. He resigned because he could not continue serving on a team where agreements are not kept."

Meany and Reuther and their organizations, as did most of the rest of organized labor's leaders, supported Democrat Adlai Stevenson against Eisenhower in last fall's presidential elections.

AFTER HIS landslide victory, Eisenhower chose Durkin, a staunch Democrat and president of the AFL's plumbers union, for the labor Cabinet post. Durkin himself expressed surprise and the late Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) called the appointment "incredible."

The selection was widely regarded as an effort by the new administration to woo union support, since they had comprised the largest single segment of the country opposed to the Republicans.

With Durkin's appointment most union leaders adopted a "wait and see" attitude toward the new administration. The statements of Meany and Reuther, accusing the administration of breaking faith with organized labor, seemed to indicate a parting of the ways.

The 59-year-old Durkin told a packed news conference late yesterday he had submitted his resignation Aug. 31, ten days earlier, when he became convinced the administration had "broken" commitments with him on proposed changes in the Taft-Hartley law.

"I feel they are not going to carry those agreements out," Durkin said. "In fact, I was told so."

He talked it over with Eisenhower, now back in Denver after a one-day return here, in a half-hour conference yesterday morning. He said Eisenhower asked him to stay on, but he refused.

ASKED WHETHER he would have remained had Eisenhower changed his views about the T-H proposals, Durkin replied, "I think so."

Durkin said he had reached agreement on proposed T-H changes with White House aides he assumed had Eisenhower's authority to take such action. He said they included Bernard Shanley and Gerald Morgan, two members of Eisenhower's staff.

The President attended one negotiating meeting on the matter, Durkin said, and he assumed Eisenhower "had agreed" to the suggested amendments.

Durkin said there were 19 proposals thus agreed to. This is the same number of changes contained in a labor message prepared for Eisenhower to send to Congress before it adjourned last Aug. 3. The message was widely circulated and published but the White House said it was simply a "preliminary draft." It was never formally submitted to Congress.

Business groups were greatly perturbed when the message became known and said it was too favorable to organized labor.

The Reds obviously were on a spot in the Fischer case—they previously had said they sent back all Allied prisoners who wanted to go home, yet their official Peiping radio had admitted he was captured alive.

MEANWHILE, the first of 14,700 Chinese war prisoners who have renounced communism arrived in the Korean neutral zone shaking their fists and shouting, "Death to the Communists," at Red observers.

Nearly 1,000 anti-Communist Chinese entered the newly-built stockades at the sprawling "Indian Village" near Paumotu, where they will be guarded by Indian troops.

Most wore undershirts stamped with the Chinese Nationalist sunburst flag. Many were tattooed with anti-Communist slogans.

An interpreter said the captives shouted: "We will go back to the China mainland and kill Mao (Premier Mao Tse-tung of Red China)" and "crush the stooges and running dogs of Russia."

The Allies are turning over to the five-nation repatriation commission 14,700 Chinese and about 8,000 North Koreans who have refused to return to their homelands.

The Communists have said they would turn over about 300 Koreans and about 20 non-Koreans (mostly Americans) whom they claim have refused repatriation.

An Indian spokesman said the Reds have made no official report but they may turn over these men about Sept. 17.

Ohio Safety Council Awards City Honors For Accident Reduction

The Ohio State Safety Council announced high honors Friday in recognition of Circleville's record in accident prevention for 1952.

In the name of the community, Mayor Ed Amey accepted the safety group's Accident Reduction Award and Certificate of Merit for last year. The three-part recognition was presented here by Francis W. Wagner of Chillicothe, a member of the safety group's board of control.

The honors were of special significance for two reasons. State officials long have been worried about Ohio's traffic accident record on a statewide basis. Also, the recognition for Circleville covered accident reduction in the homes as well as on the highway.

Despite the increasingly serious problem of fatal traffic accidents throughout the state, Circleville had no traffic fatalities during 1952. The Certificate of Merit was awarded in tribute to that fact.

OHIO'S TRAFFIC deaths increased by 11.5 per cent last year. The state led the nation's highway death toll during the Labor Day weekend this year.

The Accident Reduction Award is given to cities that have at least a 10 per cent reduction in fatal accidents of all kinds. Circleville was able to show a reduction of 12.5 per cent in this classification for 1952.

Postmaster Test To Be Held For Kingston Post

The first examination for postmaster in Kingston at a salary of $4,770 a year under new, more exacting eligibility requirements agreed upon by the U. S. Civil Service Commission and the Post Office Department, will be open for receipt of applications until Oct. 9.

All previously existing postmaster examinations for first, second and third-class post offices and lists of eligibles are cancelled. Higher standards of eligibility were prescribed for the filling of the more than 1,700 vacant positions throughout the country.

The Commission is taking all possible steps through special publicity to civic and other community organizations to encourage qualified persons to apply for the examination.

Competitors for the postmaster vacancy must have at least two years of experience showing that they have the ability to conduct and manage the community's postal business efficiently and to supervise employees so that customers are satisfied with the service.

Applicants must take written tests. Those who pass will be assigned final ratings on the basis of their test and on their experience, ability and character. There is a one-year residence requirement and applicants must be at least 25 years of age and must not have passed their sixty-third birthday.

Complete information about the examination requirements and instructions for filing may be obtained at the post office for which this examination is being announced. Application forms must be received in the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, 25, D. C., not later than Oct. 9.

Leist Readies Move Against Southend Man

City Health Director C. O. Leist declared Friday that "disgraceful" health hazards around several homes in the community have "been tolerated long enough." He said he plans this month to make an example of one property owner in particular unless his premises are cleaned.

Leist said the conditions are found in all sections of the city, but he mentioned a southend residence as the target selected to start crackdown by his department.

said the property owner in question has ignored repeated orders to clean up his home, and added:

"There's garbage, rubbish and weeds piled right up alongside his house. It's a disgraceful mess, and typical of the conditions that have been tolerated long enough in all parts of the city."

"This man keeps telling me he isn't able to clean up the place himself, and that he can't find anybody to do it for him. Yet, we know that he uses two automobiles!"

"Such things aren't new in Circleville, but it's time we did something about them. In the case mentioned, I've threatened to condemn the property later this month unless the health hazards are eliminated."

U.S. Business Looking For 'New Money'

Would-Be Borrowers Show No Fear Of Any Slump In Future

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Business is out this month actively looking for "new money." The would-be borrowers show no sign of fearing a slump and being ready to draw back into their shells.

Corporate debt has about doubled in the last seven years as business seeks new money to finance the building of plants and buying of equipment. It also borrows because inflation and growth have boosted its need of working capital.

After the summer lull, September is seeking an active revival of offerings of new corporate securities. Prime example is American Telephone & Telegraph's plan to seek a record 625 million dollars this fall.

New capital issues (excluding refunding) by corporations this year apparently are going to just about equal last year's record total of nearly nine billion dollars, the Northern Trust Co. of Chicago predicts.

In a survey out today, the Department of Commerce and the Securities and Exchange Commission foresee a slight letdown by year's end in the present record pace of business spending for plant and equipment.

"Capital outlays may fall from current peak levels," the Chicago bank agrees, "but if they do it will probably be because earnings are down — a requirement and source of financing that usually rise and fall together."

Business has been financing its expansion more by using its retained earnings and its increasing depreciation reserves than through issuing new stocks and bonds, however.

A Federal Reserve Board survey of 300 large corporations shows that in the last five years bond and stock financing has raised only one-fifth of the total money spent. Profits put back into the business and three-fifths. Out and out borrowing supplied the rest.

Since the end of World War II, the total of corporate debt has risen from about 100 billion dollars to almost 200 billion dollars.

This huge total of debt, some fear, could be embarrassing in a recession. But Marcus Nadler, consulting economist to the Hanover Bank, New York, sees little need for concern yet.

"The long-term debt is well spaced and is being amortized," he says. "The short-term debt reflects primarily the higher cost of doing business and of large inventories at current prices."

Dr. Nadler calls the financial position of most corporations sound.

Tax Levy Asked For TB Patients

Pickaway County commissioners have proposed an additional tax to provide adequate treatment for tuberculosis patients who are under hospital care. The step is intended for financial help of needy cases.

A resolution declaring it necessary to levy a tax in excess of the 10 mill limitation was filed earlier this week with Pickaway County board of elections. The proposed levy—three tenths of one mill for five years—will be placed before voters in November.

The resolution filed by the commission specified in part the levy would be used "for the care, treatment and maintenance of residents of Pickaway County... who are suffering from tuberculosis at hospitals with which the county commissioners have contracted..."

Newscaster Tells Rotary Of Air Work

Behind the scenes operations necessary to prepare fifteen minute programs on radio and TV were outlined to members of Circleville Rotary at their meeting Thursday noon when Chet Long, Columbus news commentator, spoke before the club.

With nine years experience as a radio commentator and several years on TV, Long said at least three persons are needed to prepare and bring the radio news to the listeners, while in TV at least 17 persons are required and, in some instances, 28 persons are involved in a fifteen minute news program.

He made a comparison between radio and TV programs and said that there is a great difference in that there is visual contact in TV by the listeners. News commentators feel it is an honor to come into the homes on TV, he said, and the important thing for a commentator to remember is that he should be himself.

Much preparation is necessary in gathering material, pictures and other information which will be of interest to the listeners when there is but fifteen minutes for a program, he said, and it is necessary for the commentator to have the full cooperation of the large numbers of persons who are necessary to prepare and put the program on the air.

LONG CONCLUDED his talk by relating some of the humorous incidents which have happened to him during his years as a commentator, in some cases quite embarrassing incidents.

Dr. Nicholas Holmes of Chillicothe, district governor of Rotary, will make his official visit to the club next Thursday.

WASHINGTON (AP)—For eight months as secretary of labor, Martin P. Durkin acted meek and mild. Yesterday, he quit with a blast at the White House, although not specifically at President Eisenhower.

In the eight months, he stayed pretty much out of sight, making only a few speeches, and holding no more than six news conferences, including yesterday's when he disclosed his resignation.

He worked behind the scenes to get changes in the Taft-Hartley labor relations law, which Eisenhower had said needed changing. As recently as Aug. 25 Durkin expressed confidence he was making progress.

On Aug. 31 he handed in his resignation, effective yesterday. He would not explain at yesterday's news conference what happened in those six days between Aug. 25 and 31 except to say that he had an agreement from the White House that the Eisenhower administration would push for 19 changes in T-H and that the agreement had been broken.

Here is the background:

Last Dec. 31 Eisenhower tapped Durkin to be secretary of labor. Durkin, then nearing 59, was a Democrat who had voted for the Democratic presidential candidate, Adlai Stevenson. The AFL plumbers' union, of which Durkin was president, wanted T-H repealed outright.

During the presidential campaign Eisenhower had talked of changing, but not repealing, T-H. As soon as Eisenhower picked him Durkin said he thought T-H could be changed, without repeal, and still please all sides.

The reaction then of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio), father of T-H and most powerful Republican in Congress, to the Durkin appointment is now historic. "Incredible," Taft said.

Durkin's reaction to Taft's reaction was this: he said he didn't think Taft had meant anything personal. It set the pattern for his eight months in Washington, until yesterday: never say anything to make anybody mad.

On Feb. 2, in his state of the union message, Eisenhower told Congress T-H should be changed promptly. The President said Durkin's Labor Department was beginning work at once on specific recommendations for Congress.

The House and Senate Labor Committees held long hearings on proposed changes in T-H. But none of the proposals came from the administration. What was more extraordinary was that Durkin never appeared before the committees.

He told his news conference yesterday he hadn't gone before the committees because the Eisenhower administration never had made up its mind on what changes it wanted.

Durkin tried calling a conference of union, management and public-at-large representatives to work out some agreements on changing T-H. This conference met and collapsed in discord.

Eisenhower himself had previously expressed belief that if labor and management could be brought together they could work out solutions to their problems.

Finally Durkin's Labor Department staff began conferences with members of Eisenhower's White House staff to reach agreement on T-H changes which the administration would offer Congress. Taft, Durkin said, sat in on some of these conferences.

Durkin said yesterday agreement was reached with the White House staff on T-H changes shortly before Taft's death, which occurred July 31, and included some changes that Taft had previously proposed.

Congress quit three days later, Aug. 3. Shortly before it quit a proposed message to Congress, containing 19 suggested changes in T-H, was widely circulated on Capitol Hill although it was never sent to Congress formally.

The White House described it as a "preliminary draft" of a message Eisenhower intended to send. Durkin says they were fair to unions and management—but business organizations criticized them as too favorable to unions.

That Durkin thought he was making progress seems apparent from what he did on Aug. 11. Peter T. Schoemann, who had succeeded Durkin as active head of the plumbers' union, blasted the administration for what he called a "pattern of plunder."

Durkin rushed to the administration's defense. He said Eisenhower had "steadfastly" adhered to the "pledge" to make amendments in T-H and even then was "actively engaged" in preparing them.

And on Aug. 25 Durkin seemed extremely optimistic. He said the President would soon send the recommendations, which he said had been agreed upon by the White House staff, to Congress.

On Aug. 31 Durkin sent his resignation to Eisenhower. He said yesterday the White House agreement with him on T-H changes had been broken. He said he was not sure Eisenhower himself had ever approved the 19 changes.

But he said he would have stayed on as secretary if Eisenhower had altered his administration's position on the changes.

2 Weeks From Now Said Poor Time To Visit New York City

NEW YORK (AP)—There are a great many hotel rooms in this town—must run into the thousands—but if you haven't already made a reservation starting about two weeks from today it would be strongly advisable to count on staying home and burning leaves.

Three of the year's biggest sports events are scheduled to be packed into a little more than a week's time here.

First among the three spectacles in which championships will be involved comes the heavyweight battle between Rocky Marciano and Roland La Starza at the Polo Grounds on the night of Sept. 24. Two days later, Native Dancer, the 3-year-old champion, will make his run at Tom Fool, the handicapping king, in the Sysonby Mile at Belmont Park. On the following Wednesday the Yankees and the Dodgers open their homeric tussle at Yankee Stadium.

From this distance it begins to look as though the odds in favor of Marciano keeping his title will lengthen gradually right up to the weigh-in, and that the belter from Brockton might enter the ring a 5-to-1 favorite, or even better.

Why this is so we do not pretend to know. In our mind, La Starza figures to have a real good chance. But the promoters have had much difficulty selling the comparison between Roland and another clever boxer named Gene Tunney, and the talk invariably gets around to the established fact that Marciano can chill a man with one wallop from either fist.

Sampling of press box opinion we took the other day would indicate that the older horse, Tom Fool, will command heavier backing than Native Dancer in their dream race, notwithstanding the latter's tremendous two-season record and the fact he will have a pull in the weights. Some who picked the Fool said they would switch their choice if the race were to be at a mile and a half. They think the Dancer needs a lot of running room.

The Yankees broke every rule of baseball superstition by holding their "victory" celebration on the train coming home from the West the other day. The thought of throwing a whinding before the flag is clinched sends shudders down many spines, but the Bombers feel they are above such childish fantasies, and maybe they are. Perhaps more significant in any preview of the big playoff is the fact that Billy Loes, the youngest and most unpredictable of the Brooklyn pitchers, turned in a four-hitter against the Phils on Labor Day. This was indeed something, because Billy had not gone the route in two months and Manager Charlie Dressen was beginning to wonder if he ever would again.

If Billy has come out of his trance it is important Series news, for there had been a question of which Dodger hurler outside Carl Erskine, Preacher Roe and Russ Meyer might be risked a start against the Yanks. A Loes at his best could make a great difference.

In the Middle Ages the Baltic Sea is said to have frozen over frequently.

Hartman Warns City School Problems Can't End Quickly

In an easy, friendly manner, Circleville's new superintendent of city schools gave the unvarnished facts Thursday night to parents of the community's school children.

Superintendent George Hartman, named to the city school helm earlier this summer, told a large Parent-Teacher Association turnout that Circleville's school problems probably will get a little worse before they get better.

The new school head, in his first major public address here, promised he will urge a broad program to improve the city's school facilities at the earliest possible date. First, however, he warned, it is essential that he "become acquainted in Circleville" and have a full opportunity to analyze the task before him.

More than 150 persons attended the meeting of the city PTA in Circleville High School auditorium. It was the organization's first meeting of the new school year. Teachers made up a large portion of the audience.

ALTHOUGH Hartman reminded his listeners there is no easy cure-all for Circleville's share of the problems that face schools throughout the nation, his talk sounded a cheering note in realistic views and assurance of long-range planning. As generally expected, he envisioned a bond issue as eventual target for the city's school-development program.

Hartman, named superintendent when Frank Fischer announced his desire to return to a teaching post in the city school system, was introduced to the PTA gathering by Mrs. Carle Snider. Mrs. Snider was in charge of the meeting's program in the absence of Attorney Joe Adkins, chairman of the program committee.

The new superintendent said he is already aware of difficult questions facing the city's school setup but expressed belief "we are off to a wonderful start" toward finding the answers.

"We face major problems here in Circleville," he said, "and I feel that, as time goes on, the problems will become more acute."

Hartman drew a wave of laughter from his listeners when he said he was deeply impressed by the "number of so many dissatisfied persons" in his first contacts with the city's educational system. He promised immediate efforts to "get to the bottom" of dissatisfaction, wherever found.

"I realize," he said, "that the situation may actually need much greater speed than I will be able to give it at the beginning, but first I must become acquainted in Circleville before I can adequately tackle our problems."

AS HE MOVES to bring about continued improvement of the school system, Hartman stressed he will have particular care for the protection of "the many fine things already present here." No general overhaul of the city's educational scene, he assured the PTA group, is intended.

Hartman paid tribute to the higher caliber of Circleville's boys and girls of school age. He said his impression along this line was one of the foremost he had in first taking charge. As an illustration of this point, he mentioned in particular the above-average care local school children have for their books.

Primary step in tackling the duties of his office, he told the PTA, will be to "develop an attitude of cooperation" among all concerned. He said he is especially anxious to "get out and spend as much time as I can among the elementary schools."

Hartman after the meeting explained he feels the heaviest weight of the city's school problems appears to rest on the first six elementary grades. His reference presumably was to adequate classroom space and the long-recognized problem of having pupils attend the school nearest their homes.

Later in his talk he mentioned directly the matter of pupil transfers. Parents in the past have frequently objected when their children have been transferred from one school to another in an effort to make the best of limited classroom space.

"Meeting the problem of our large enrollments," Hartman said, "will probably need a number of temporary procedures. And even with efforts along this line it will be found that some problems just can't be solved as we would like to have them—even with all the transferring that's been done, some of it under protest."

HARTMAN DIVERTED briefly from material problems faced by the city school system to assure the parents and teachers that special attention will be given to the moral and religious side of education. "Wherever we can," he said, "we will enrich moral training in our schools," warning at the same time that such a policy will have to be held within carefully planned limitations.

Special classes may eventually be introduced to advance this phase of education, he said.

The new school administrator said it is inevitable that Circleville's school problems will continue to grow for an indefinite period, and that it will "probably be a matter of years" before major corrective steps can be established. A bond issue, as the key means of such improvement, will need much preparation and study before any proposal is actually placed before the voters, he pointed out.

City Guard Unit To Be Filmed At Logan Elm

Approximately two dozen members of Circleville's National Guard unit will participate Saturday afternoon in a tree-planting ceremony at Logan Elm Park while a movie camera puts it all on film.

The film, along with similar scenes being recorded elsewhere in Ohio, will be distributed nationwide as a promotional medium. Tree-planting programs have been encouraged throughout the state in the cause of conservation and scenic beauty.

In addition, the film recorded at Logan Elm will touch on the historical background of the local area. A tie-in for National Guard recruiting purposes will also be included.

Plans for the ceremony were announced by Sfc. Mack Wise, unit administrator for Co. I of the 166th Regimental Combat Team, Circleville's Guard unit. Wise succeeded M-Sgt. Walter Gilmore as unit administrator on Aug. 24.

THE LOCAL tree-planting program may be expanded to include new trees around city school buildings, Wise explained. He said tentative arrangements have been made to have Ted Lewis, famed bandsman and singer, return to his native city here for the day's activities.

An effort will be made to have the film available for showing here during the 1953 Pumpkin Show.

Veteran trial lawyers will take the newcomers to the profession under their wings for about five jury trials, he said.

The internship, similar to that given doctors, will not be compulsory but Hullverson said many young lawyers have been anxious for such a program.

The man who had lounged so casually against a lamp post near their car was Vice Squad Capt. Fred Littlepage.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—The gals that gentlemen prefer—blondes—have the edge so far in talent and swim suit preliminaries for the Miss America 1954 crown.

Three of the four lovelies who won in the past two nights of competition in the two divisions are golden tressed. The fourth is a brunette.

Tonight is the last round of preliminaries before the grand finals tomorrow night, when one of the 52 entries will be given the crown and robes of Miss America—plus $50,000 in awards.

Last night's winners who picked up coveted points toward the title were Miss South Dakota, Delores Jerde of Spearfish, and Miss Wyoming, Elaine Lois Holkenbrink of Torrington, both blue-eyed beauties of 19.

With them in the preliminary winners' circle are Miss Pennsylvania, Evelyn Margaret Ay of Ephrata, and Miss Virginia, Anne Lee Ciglis of Norfolk, who took the honors Wednesday night. Evelyn is an ash-blond and Anne a brunette.

Miss South Dakota and Miss Wyoming won in the talent and bathing suit categories respectively.

West Europe Asked To Aid World Bank

More Investment Money Said Needed To Help Poor Areas

WASHINGTON (AP)—Western European nations were called on today by the World Bank to make more investment money available and help it develop other areas.

The bank's annual report showed that the ten highly industrialized nations of Western Europe have made fully available to the bank only $62,804,000 in its seven years of existence. Another $308,618,000 is also available, but subject to conditions that make it hard for the bank to count on when it is considering loans.

These are the highly industrialized countries able to produce the goods that underdeveloped countries need. They had pledged $558,540,000 for the bank's active lending. The countries are: Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Italy, The Netherlands, Norway, Sweden and the United Kingdom.

The United States is the only country which has put up its full pledge—$572,500,000. Canada with $53,365,000, has nearly reached that point.

A similar appeal made last year brought the unconditional release of $26,600,000 worth of European currencies in the past twelve months that ended June 30. World Bank officials said that more and more is being released every year.

Britain released 60 million pounds (168 million dollars) last year, the bank notes, but only for use in the sterling area and after consultation in each case.

The report was prepared for delivery today by President Eugene Black at the opening of the eighth annual meeting of the bank's board of governors. The meeting is scheduled to last through Saturday.

It points to the fact that supplies are now more freely available outside the United States and that well over a third of its spending last year was beyond its limits. The proportion of non-dollar loans also increased.

But unless the European governments release more funds to the bank, it warns that its activities may be restrained. Reluctance to do so, it points out, also reduces possible exports by European members.

Loans to European countries amounted to equivalent of $34,333,464, in the $178,600,000 lent during the twelve months that ended June 30. That brought the total on loan in Europe to $734,000,000—more than has been lent to any other area and nearly half the bank's total loans.

The bank made no Middle East loans in the period covered, but did put fourteen million dollars in to railway development on Northern Rhodesia.

The report devotes a considerable section to a new phenomenon in underdeveloped countries, the establishment of what it calls "institutions to weigh government policy and guide government investment in economic development."

It cites the National Bank for Development in Brazil, the National Planning Council in Colombia and the Development Board in Iraq.

Men Found 'Best' In Suicide Tries

ROME (AP)—A world congress on figures has been told that more women try to commit suicide than men, but the men do a better job of trying. At least, that's the situation in Rome.

Dean: Went To Front With Gun To Show The Boys How To Fight

NEW YORK (AP)—You don't have to meet a man in this world to learn something from him.

I never met Maj. Gen. William Dean. I got to Korea late in July 1950, a few days after he was reported missing in combat. This I have always regretted. I would like to have seen him in action.

He is free again now, after nearly three years in enemy prison camps. But although I never met him personally, he has enriched my life by teaching me two things:

1. Don't sell faith short.
2. A man's example lives beyond his presence.

When I first reached Korea, Gen. Dean's 24th Infantry Division was still retreating after a series of confused but magnificent delaying stands to hold up an overwhelming North Korean Army that, had it known how to use its power, would have had the entire peninsula in three short weeks.

A still-dazed American officer told me:

"We thought all we had to do was to stand on a hill and show the U. S. uniform, and all those little brown gooks would run back north where they came from."

In those dark days the 24th Division had suffered terrible losses. And each day it suffered more. It is less a criticism of the men than it is of America to say the division was unready for combat.

The men weren't in proper shape. They were short of the right weapons. And so it was that Gen. Dean, a first class fighting man, had to go up and do what no division commander should be required to do.

He had to go up and show the boys how. He himself was the 24th Division. He was the spearhead of an ill-prepared America—in the flesh. He had to do what they teach a commander at West Point he shouldn't have to do. He had to go to the bare front, forget his two stars, and lead like a second lieutenant. So did his colonels, including rugged Dick Stephens, later known as "The average of 10.77 men and 6.78 women kill themselves annually. But of every 100,000, an average 50.6 females and 35.59 males try.

Big Six," and now a major general himself.

The fate of Gen. Dean was to be captured after trying to get a wounded man back. He knew that theoretically a man of his rank shouldn't be where he was, but he was fighting a fact, not a taught war. Without the on-the-spot leadership that such commanders as he and Col. Stephens gave, the retreat would have become a rout.

After his bullet-pierced helmet was found, those of us who came later were sure Gen. Dean was dead. But again and again we ran into this stubborn comment from the enlisted men who had seen him fight:

"They just couldn't have killed the general. He's too smart for them. He'll turn up yet."

This faith seemed futile and foolish to us at the time. But it was amazing how the example of Gen. Dean's personal courage carried on with his men. They found it hard to let him down, knowing what he had done. And they didn't let him down.

Through all the months after that each member of the battered 24th Division felt he could hardly do less than his lost leader.

That kind of frontline leadership went out of the American Army with the Civil War. It is too expensive, and a modern army no longer can afford it.

But it is a fact of history that the sacrifice and valor of Gen. Dean paid off magnificently. Nor will the American Army (and the relations between officer and enlisted man) suffer by what he did.

In the annals of our soldiery he will be imperishably remembered as the general who, when it had to be done, went up gun in hand and showed the boys how. No other officer in our time has done more to popularize the stars of rank.

Supt. J. E. Way says Pike County has a severe overcrowding of classrooms, and too few teachers, textbooks and supplies.

The pupils are from families coming to work and live near the atomic energy plant. Pike County and its neighbor, Scioto County, both have asked federal aid to increase facilities. Ross County, to the north, reported overcrowding, too.

City Youth, 17, Struck By Auto

William Skeens, 17, of 569 E. Main St., suffered a fractured right leg late Wednesday when he was struck by an auto on Lancaster Pike near E. Main St.

The accident happened at about 10:40 p. m. Wednesday when autos coming from the stock car races at the fairgrounds were lined up on Lancaster Pike awaiting the traffic light to change.

Police Sgt. Turney Ross said an auto operated by Barbara Ann Cain, 20, of Hamilton, was traveling east on Main St. and turned left onto Lancaster Pike after having stopped for the light.

The officer said Skeens, who had been in a car stopped by the light on Lancaster Pike, jumped from the car and was hit by the Cain auto as he started to run across the street.

William Plum, a sheriff's auxiliary who had been on duty at the stock car races, handled traffic until Ross arrived. Skeens was treated in Berger hospital.

ACTION IS THE LURE

WITH THE FOOTBALL season just around the corner, and organized baseball heading toward pennants and the world series, interest of the public will soon be transferred from the diamond to the gridiron. There is every indication the forthcoming season—both college and professional—will be one of great competition, with attendance surpassing the amazing crowds of previous years.

Typical of the situation is interest in the game between Oklahoma University and Notre Dame, scheduled for Norman, Okla., on September 26. The stadium at Norman seats 57,647 persons. With exception of 8,000 tickets reserved for the student body, all tickets were sold months ago. Many fell into the hands of scalpers, and it is reported that the price now is $40 each, with many takers. Special trains will be run from many cities.

This promises to be one of the outstanding football events of the season, because of the fame of the two teams and the fact that Notre Dame is making its first appearance in Oklahoma.

Similar interest in forthcoming games is noted throughout the country. Attendance at major games will be limited only to the capacity of the fields. A single word describes the attraction of football—action. Baseball has it to a certain extent, but baseball has become too scientific in recent years. Football is more rough and ready.

Twenty-two young athletes, always playing for keeps, offer a spectacle to which Americans have taken by the millions. They love action, and football supplies it to a greater extent than any other sport.

CONFUSION CONFOUNDED

THE GOVERNMENT HAS further confused the wheat acreage situation by issuing a new directive permitting additional seeding, presumably as a cover crop or for pasture, but not to be harvested as grain.

Farmers had been notified how many acres they can seed for harvesting, remainder of the land to be devoted to other crops. Then the Department of Agriculture told the farmer to go ahead and seed all his land, but he must harvest only the percentage already assigned.

That sounds simple enough. But is it? The farmer must go to the county PMA office and designate on a map, with legal descriptions, the land he will seed for harvest and the part he will not harvest.

Not only that, but the farmer must destroy his excess acreage some time before harvest. He will not be permitted to wait until the entire crop has matured, and then harvest the best of it. Instead he must

These Days

Germany has had a long tradition of resisting the lava-like flow of the Slavic and Mongolian hordes into Europe. As far back as 1222, the Mongols appeared in Europe. Already in existence were the Teutonic Knights, a German order devoted to the German Church of Mary the Virgin, stationed at a hospital in Acre. In 1198, this group became a military order, known as the Teutonic Knights.

After the Crusades, these knights moved to Germany where they were placed on the eastern borders of Germany where they played a role in the establishment of Brandenburg and Mecklenburg. Lubeck became a center of their activities and their missionary efforts extended as far as Riga in Livonia (now a part of Russia called Latvia). Here the Livonian Brothers of the Sword was established.

The main function of the Teutonic Knights was to Christianize the nations on the eastern boundary of Germany and to encourage German pioneers to migrate to these areas. In this capacity, in 1234, they transferred their now large holdings to the Pope, which they received back as fiefs—in a word, they had no other lord, in this feudal era, but the Pope.

The significance of this chapter in German history is that the tradition of Germany, as a wall against which the Slavs and Mongols often struck, continues in the race memory of the Teutonic peoples to this day. The victory of Dr. Konrad Adenauer is a defeat for Russia.

The Russians so regard it. It is an acknowledgment that Germany is part of the Western Christian world which, before World War II, stopped at the Oder River, but now stops at the Elbe by virtue of the Yalta Agreement.

Had Adenauer been defeated, or had his victory been less pronounced, it would have been possible to say that Germany, after two unsuccessful wars, had lost its historic sense and that the German people were prepared to submit to Russian conquest. For that was the realistic issue in this election. Adenauer courageously accepted the risk of a clear-cut opposition to Russia; his opponents were neutralists, which could only have led to the forerunner of absorption in the Soviet Empire by the device of a Peoples' Government.

The United States has assumed a marked responsibility for Western Germany. Both President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles intervened in the West German election. Almost on the eve of the election, Dulles delivered his now famous speech before the American Legion, followed by a press interview, establishing American interest in the victory of Adenauer. The internationalist press in this country attacked Dulles' speech as being inept and likely to bring on the defeat of Adenauer. They were proved by events to have been incorrect in their judgment and propagandistic in their objectives.

Actually, the Eisenhower-Dulles program of putting their cards on the table for all to see has proved to be correct. It may not suit the British or the French that we should support a distinctly anti-Russian government in West Germany, but the German people have established in this election that their attitude is the same as ours.

Anti-Venom for Snake Bite

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE bite of the female spider is more dangerous than that of the male. Although the bites of most spiders are not injurious, a few are poisonous.

The black widow is the worst offender. Most cases of spider bites occur in the southern United States but the black widow spider has been found in most northern cities and in practically any location. The female black widow has a coal black body about half an inch long. There are red or orange hour glass markings on it.

Pain Disappears
Men are the most frequent victims of the bites, with over two-thirds of the bites occurring around the reproductive organs. The sting of the black widow spider produces a sharp pain over the area bitten. The pain generally disappears four to five hours later.

About fifteen to thirty minutes after the bite, the patient develops severe abdominal pain which can be mistaken for abdominal diseases such as appendicitis, especially if there is no knowledge of the bite having occurred. There is a great weakness, tremors of the body and severe pain in the arms and legs. Later, the venom of the spider can cause a feeble pulse, labored breathing, and even stupor.

Anti-Venom Developed

Unlike snake bites, local treatment of spider bites is valueless. Injections of calcium are helpful in controlling the pain. There has been an anti-venom developed which counteracts the poison of the spider and which is quite effective working against the disease. However, convalescence may be prolonged for weeks. It has been found that cortisone and ACTH are helpful in treating the severe symptoms accompanying the spider bite.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

V. B.: Would it be possible for me to have a sandpaper operation to remove blotches and small holes left by a skin disease which has been cured?

Answer: This depends upon the type of skin disease. Certain cases of acne scars have been benefited by the sandpaper treatment.

SYNOPSIS
Philip Haven's niece, Libby, was missing from the house when Philip returned home to Connecticut, after a long absence in Mexico. Libby had left a note in her room urging the family to look for her. Her cousin Kit and Hugo Cavanaugh, an attorney, once devoted to Kit but now Libby's swain, start out to find the missing girl. They visit the manse New York apartment of Tony Wilder, a classically handsome young man of whom Libby had become enamored. But Tony, like Libby, is nowhere to be found. They proceed to the uptown home of Eleanor Oaks, a bizarre and tattered lady, who seems greatly agitated when Kit suggests that Tony and Libby may have eloped. Samuel Pedrick, a tall macabre figure, is present as they chat. Her search fruitless, Kit returns to the Connecticut house. Hugo tells that the wraith-like Pedrick is a figure well-known in the New York underworld. Late that night Kit discovers a light left burning in the kitchen, but reaching it she finds the room empty, the kettle singing merrily on the stove, a window open, a garden ladder reposing beneath the window of Libby's room.

CHAPTER NINE
KIT RAN to the window of the empty study and thrust her head and shoulders over the sill. The stars were bright and there was a slice of moon low in the sky. The lawns, the sycamore, the stone walls—you could see clean to the edge of the orchard. Nothing moved. There was no one in sight. Kit shut and locked the window and started for the stairs fast.

Mounting, she slowed. Philip might have left his window open, but he couldn't have placed the chair against the door from the inside. Undoubtedly someone had broken into the study. Her uncle was tired and needed sleep, but she'd have to get someone to help her make the rounds and see whether anything was wrong. Hugo wasn't to be thought of. She pulled her robe tighter around her and tied the sash. William, then. She went along the upper hall and was about to knock on William's door when the door of the other guest room opened and Hugo stuck his head out. His hair was rumpled, his eyes bright.

"Kit! What is it? What's the trouble?"

She said: "Someone has been down in Philip's study."

Inside her room Miriam snored softly. She had an even, rhythmic snore.

Hugo said softly: "Half a minute and I'll be with you."

He retreated, pulled on trousers and a coat, and joined her. The study was just as she had left it, and as always neat and in order. Nothing had been disturbed. All the other downstairs windows with-in reach, in the hall and the dining-room, were closed and locked. They went into the kitchen. The doors and windows there and in the pantry and in the entryway were secure.

Hugo shrugged. "If there was someone here—"

Kit said: "My dear man, there was someone here. Chairs don't put themselves on the inside of doors." She pointed. "Kettles don't boil unless someone turns the gas on under them, nor do ceiling lights come on by themselves."

Hugo smiled at her. "Suppose the maid left the light on and forgot to turn it off?"

Kit said: "I told you so. It was those nurserymen. They broke those valuable bushes and they should be made to—"

"Beg pardon, mister?"

One of the nurserymen had approached, unheard. He had come for the ladder; the rest of the dead wood on the apple trees at the edge of the orchard had to be pruned. The man, Joe Gauntlett, had put the ladder where it now was before leaving yesterday. He looked at the ladder. "Yes, I put it here—but not the way it is now. The other side was top. Someone must have been fooling around with it after we went, that's how the bushes got broken. Yes sir, someone stood that ladder up against that wall and broke them branches. Not me."

A ladder against the house the night, a ladder that must from the marks in the ground, had rested under Libby's window. Kit ran inside and up the stairs with William at her heels. Miriam heard them and hailed William. She wanted him to take the car and go to the drug store and get her new medicine. "I phoned the druggist and it's ready."

"Just a minute, aunt," William called back. "There's something that needs attention—"

Miriam said: "I need your attention—now. My water pitcher's empty and I want it filled."

William stood still. He had always seemed devoted to his demanding—and perhaps wealthy— aunt. Swinging around the end of the stair railing, Kit caught a glimpse of his face. It was livid. He went toward Miriam's room, his head bent, his shoulders slumped. He looked as though he could swing Miriam's neck. Interesting. Kit had no time for it then. She ran on to the end of the hall and around the jog and opened Libby's door.

The north window was down, the one below which the ladder had rested, and nothing seemed to have been disturbed. She could no longer smell the perfume but the air was stuffy. Kit started across the floor and stood stock-still in the middle of it.

Lying on the white rug, beyond the foot of the bed was what looked like a decapitated human head, face down, a woman's head with a hat on it. It was one of Libby's hat stands. The hat on it was a cherry-colored straw cloche with navy ribbon streamers that Kit had never seen her wear. The round red crown was split wide open by a blow that had all but crushed the paper-mache head beneath it. The weapon that had been used, a hammer, was on the rug beside the smashed head.

Kit stared down at the thing at her feet, pushing away sickness and an odd sort of terror and trying to make her reason work. Who could have done such a thing—and why? It looked like hatred pure and simple, a hatred revenging itself symbolically on a Libby who was out of reach.

It was also a piece of exhibitionism crying out to be noticed. "I hate her, do you understand. I hate her. This is what I would do to her if I could." Unbridled rage on the spur of the moment, hadn't it wasn't the spur of the moment. In the dead of night someone had felt around for the ladder in darkness, had propped it against the house wall and had climbed rung by rung.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11—Uncle Sam's land-grabbing proclivities are now under scrutiny by several top Eisenhower agencies, and property worth hundreds of millions of dollars may eventually be returned to the dwindling tax rolls of complaining states, counties and cities. It will be an indirect form of tax reduction to millions of individuals.

The vast holdings, which comprise an area almost three times the size of Texas, have been accumulated in a haphazard, unbusinesslike way. There has never been a central, land-coordinating agency at Washington. Until now, there has never been a survey to obtain a cost-and-loss inventory.

Uncle Sam is, perhaps, the only landlord who does not know how much property he owns, where it is located, how much it is worth, or how much he can turn back to its original owners with mutual benefits.

A special panel of the Hoover Reorganizing Commission is now studying the problem, and will report to the next session of Congress. The committee set up by Eisenhower to examine federal-state relationships has also tackled it.

HOLDINGS—The Interior Department has been the principal agent in the acquisition of land, buildings and equipment. In the 11 western states, it now holds more than 60 per cent of the total area, reaching as high as 85 per cent in Nevada.

Under its conservation policy, the Department of Interior has appropriated forests, grazing and mineral land, vast water-power resources, national parks, etc. It has constantly increased its domain in the last 20 years on the ground that the government must thwart ruthless and predatory exploitation by the "interests."

In the process, however, it has sometimes expanded simply for the sake of power and expansion. It has irrigated worthless land, and caused heavy losses to homesteaders, including veterans. It has adopted a dog-in-the-manger attitude toward needed, private development of these locked-up resources, according to its critics.

LAND-GRABBERS—Federal landlordism, once only a western concern, has now become a national problem as a result of defense expansion during and since World War II. The military rank second only to Interior as Washington's most rapacious land-grabbers, especially along the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific Seaboard. And they resort to court-martial tactics when they take it into their head that they need property, giving no consideration to local interests, public or private.

From Maine to Miami, on the coast and inland to great depth, they have commandeered choice sites. They harass such important industries as fishing, shipping, beach resorts, recreation, valuable real estate developments and coastal plants. They bid up prices for land required by communities for their water supply, suburban outlets, parks and schools.

TAKEN OVER—Urban expansion has cramped cities and aggravated management problems. The military and other agencies have taken over office buildings, warehouses, parking areas, railroad facilities, airports, etc. In many communities the telephone books need several pages to list only the federal numbers. The area around Washington and other great centers has been transformed into a military reservation.

Along the Potomac and Chesapeake Bay the services retain title to forts built during the Revolution, when British gunboats could navigate upstream to Washington and Baltimore. Many are now used only as country clubs, yacht basins and picnicking grounds.

Opponents of a review and revision of Uncle Sam's holdings denounce it as a "giveaway" program. It may be a major political issue next year, especially in the West, which gave all its electoral votes to Ike last year. Democrats count on it as a winning issue. But the Hoover group believes it will find millions of dollars worth of property which should not have been rendered unto Caesar.

Flower Show Scheduled At Pickaway County Fair

500 Entries May Be Entered Here

Banks of beautiful flowers will greet patrons of the 1953 Pickaway County Fair.

Mrs. Harry C. Kern, a director of this year's Fair flower show, said approximately 500 entries may be expected in that department this year.

The flower show is to be presented in four sections: quality of flowers; artistic arrangement; junior gardeners; and specials.

Almost all of the county's gardeners are expected to enter this year's show, which has increased its premiums to the level offered two years ago. Last year's show was somewhat hampered when prizes were diminished by about 25 per cent.

Competition is expected to be keen more importantly because of the high aims of the flower show, as graphically illustrated in the Fair premium book:

"To stimulate and encourage good gardening; to educate the public in the use of plant material in homes and gardens; for creative diversion and the appreciation of flowers and their places in our lives; and to set high ideals in good horticultural practice and good sportsmanship."

Members of the guiding committees of this year's Fair flower show predict a large number of entries, although the heat wave and drought which ended only about 10 days ago may affect the total somewhat.

Judge for this year's flower show will be Mrs. Wade Cozad of Lancaster, regional director of district nine of the Ohio Association of Garden Clubs and chairman of the flower arrangement and judges school for the Ohio Association.

Serving with Mrs. Kern on the directing committee for the show are Mrs. Herman Porter, Mrs. William Cook and Mrs. Lee Downs. Assisting is Miss Mary Drake, county contact chairman.

Goal of exhibitors will be found in the special awards department. A prize of $5 is offered to the club which places first in "Our Heritage" theme along the sesquicentennial line; and $5 for the individual winning the largest number of blue ribbons on artistic arrangements.

Entries in all classes must be in place by noon Thursday and may not be removed until after 4 p. m. Saturday.

Rules and regulations for the flower show may be found in the Fair premium booklet.

There's Still No Report On Heroic Major

Yankee Missing 3 Years After Death March From Seoul

WASHINGTON (AP) — Operation Big Switch has ended in Korea and still there is no word of what happened to "The Major"—the hero of a Communist-ordered death march from Seoul in the early days of the war.

His wife is still waiting after three years for someone, somewhere to end the terrible suspense of not knowing.

She is like thousands of other Americans who had a husband or a son or a father among the almost 8,000 men missing in action. She had hoped her man was still alive and would be among those freed.

Now she hopes there is someone among the returning prisoners who will be able to tell her the fate of her husband. There are undoubtedly hundreds of others with similar hopes.

Here is the beginning of the major's story. Perhaps someone among the returning prisoners might yet be able to write an ending.

The major is William Thomas McDaniel of Ahsokie, N. C. and Albany, Ga. He was stationed at Camp Haugen in northern Honshu Japan, when the war began. He was 35 years old, a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy in the class of 1941. He lived at Camp Haugen with his 27-year-old wife Helen and his two sons—then 4 and 3.

The war had been under way only a few days when McDaniel was ordered into Korea with the 24th Infantry Division. He told his wife it would be best for her to take the children home to North Carolina until he could join them.

A few days after he left, Mrs. McDaniel received a letter. The major told her not to worry. Everything was going to be all right.

McDaniel reached the front about July 15, 1950. Elements of his division—commanded by Maj. Gen. William Dean—were fighting a desperate battle for time around Taejon. The Reds had overrun part of the artillery. Even Gen. Dean was down with his troops shooting at tanks.

McDaniel led a foray to recapture howitzers overrun by the Reds. He did, leading his men through a gantlet of enemy fire. And then McDaniel was captured only five days after he entered the fight. He never knew he won the Silver Star for his bravery and a promotion to the rank of lieutenant colonel.

About three months later, we heard the story of McDaniel from survivors of a Red massacre at a railroad tunnel near the little town of Suncheon in North Korea.

The boys who escaped the massacre knew McDaniel only as "The Major."

"He was a wonderful guy," one of them said. "The major risked his own neck to get better treatment for us. He always gave us part of his food and shared his cigarettes and he took care of us as best he could."

McDaniel was forced to march from Seoul to Pyongyang with a prisoner group. Whenever a prisoner died on this death march—died of illness or a Red bullet in the head—the major insisted on a Christian burial. He refused to go on until he had said a prayer over the grave. In each grave he left a bottle containing the name and serial number of the dead man.

A survivor said: "We never would have made it except for the major." And others who escaped agreed.

It was in October 1950 that the Reds put McDaniel and other pris-

Courage for Christian Living
ENDURE HARDSHIPS AS A GOOD SOLDIER OF CHRIST

Scripture—II Timothy 1:3-15; 2:1-15.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
FEAR is a primitive feeling we share with all living things. An infant has a fear of falling, we are told, and all through life fears assail us. The person who has conquered fear and faces life with serenity is rare indeed.

St. Paul, in close confinement, knowing that death—and a painful one—was near, thought, not of himself, but of his adopted son and disciple, Timothy, who, he prayed, would live to carry on his work and teach others to take over after he, too, had passed on.

Fear is rampant in our modern world, and we hear many voices of those who warn us daily of the possible perils ahead. But there are also in the world hope and faith; a courage to face whatever disaster and danger come our way, and bear them bravely if we cannot overcome them.

Ministers of the gospel (bless them!) if they are true to their calling, help to banish fear and to keep faith alive. They preach from our pulpits; they follow our armed forces into the very midst of battles and help them to endure and to do their duty like men, and comfort the sorrowing.

Paul writes to Timothy once more how he prays for him without ceasing. "Greatly desiring to see thee, being mindful of thy tears, that I may be filled with joy;

"When I call to remembrance the unfeigned faith that is in thee, which dwelt first in thy grandmother, Lois, and thy mother, Eunice, and I am persuaded that in thee also."

Paul had known the two women of whom he speaks—Timothy's grandmother and mother. He had known Timothy as a boy in his home, and he realizes what trials and possible death at the hands of enemies of the faith Timothy faces, and writes to tell him of his (Paul's) faith in him and encourage him to face what may be in store for him.

"For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind." "Be not thou therefore ashamed of the testimony of our Lord, nor of me his prisoner; but be thou partaker of the afflictions of the gospel according to the power of God; who hath saved us, and called us with an holy calling, oners on a train which was to carry them from Pyongyang to Manchuria. U. S. bombers attacked the train and it stopped in a tunnel to wait for the shield of darkness. And there the Communist guards decided to kill their prisoners.

At dusk the guards told McDaniel to come with them—that they were going to get food for the prisoners. The major left the train with his captors.

Then the guards took the other Americans from the train in three groups. As the boys sat in the fields with their rice bowls in their hands, waiting to be fed, the guards opened fire. We found 68 bodies. Somehow 22 youths survived that night of horror. And they told the story of the major.

"We never saw the major after not according to our works, but according to His own purpose and grace, which was given us in Christ Jesus before the world began."

How touched Timothy must have been by Paul's words of encouragement to him when Paul was in such dire peril. Timothy must have loved Paul like a son his father, for Paul speaks of Timothy's tears—probably when they parted.

"Thou, therefore, my son, be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus. And the things that thou hast heard of me among many witnesses, the same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also.

"Thou therefore endure hardness, as a good soldier of Jesus Christ.

"No man that warreth entangleth himself with the affairs of this life; that he may please him who hath chosen him to be a soldier.

"And if a man also strive for me, let him be crowned, except he strive lawfully."

Paul is thinking again of an athletic conquest—comparing it to the race of life.

"Consider what I say; and the Lord give thee understanding in all things."

This lesson is an excellent one for ministers of the gospel to study. They too, have their discouragements and fears, but reading Paul's words, they must take courage and be heartened to continue to be good soldiers in Christ. Children can get much good from his words, too. They all know what soldiers are, what dangers they must face. Some of them may have brothers in the armed services; they may have lost a brother in a war. Mothers tell their children to be good soldiers, too, and not let their hurts and disappointments make them cry or grow angry.

As Paul "endured all things for the elect's sakes" we too may "also obtain the salvation which is in Christ Jesus with eternal glory; for if we be dead in Him, we shall also live with Him; if we suffer, we shall also reign with Him."

And finally, "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

he left the train," one youth said. "We don't know what happened to him."

For three years Mrs. McDaniel has been hoping someone will be able to tell her whether the major still lives—or what happened at the tunnel after he left the train.

She is living now in Williamsburg, Va. Both McDaniel boys, Tom and John, are old enough to go to school this year. And Mrs. McDaniel has decided to get a job.

"For a long time I couldn't bear to talk about what happened," she says. "But finally I knew I had to face reality. I still hope there will be someone coming back who can tell me something. Anything is better than this."

Guaranteed Annual Wage Next Demand

Major Job Security Strategy Is Mapped By Labor Unions

NEW YORK (AP)—Annual wages for the factory worker as well as the white collar man could be the next big—and possibly bitter—battle in the labor field.

The tip-off that job security is coming to top higher hourly pay rates in the worker's eyes might be found in the recent break in the stock market. It has multiplied hitters over a feared dip later on in production, and therefore in jobs, in basic industries such as steel, autos and appliances.

Should such a dip materialize it means layoffs. And labor leaders realize their men can't make their new and higher wage scales go far at the grocery store if the factory is shut down.

In previous years, with the economy on the upgrade, labor negotiators asked for the guaranteed annual wage, but they settled for wage increases instead. Now they are more nervous about layoffs.

But if it thinks a slump is coming, management naturally is going to be just that less willing to commit itself to paying for a year's work if the work may not be done.

Walter Reuther has given notice he'll ask for a guaranteed annual wage for his CIO United Auto Workers.

"When a company has to pay a guaranteed annual wage," he argues, "it will do something about stopping layoffs." He sees production falling and layoffs the order of the day "if the purchasing power of the people isn't increased."

Management has its stake in steady production, too. Full production schedules every working day make for complete and efficient use of a company's facilities, as the American Institute of Management, of New York, points out. It holds: "Unemployment and uncertainty are factors too large for managements interested in survival to take lightly any longer."

The institute sees both advantages and disadvantages in an annual wage for production workers.

If the peaks and valleys of production and employment can be leveled off, the loss of idle machinery is cut. Stabilization also reduces the risk of high labor turnover and the cost of training new workers. The institute also suggests the guarantee might increase productivity by removing worry.

But it says there's also the chance that job insecurity leads workers to work harder to keep a job. Other disadvantages it mentions are that the guarantee's fixed costs would raise the break-even point in many industries and increase the mortality rate of businesses.

And, of course, a serious recession could mean a drop in demand for the company's products that would dry up the sales out of which the fixed annual wages would have to be paid.

Small North Sea Town Lives On Flotsam Of Shipwrecks

RANTUM-SYLT, Germany (AP)—The tragic harvest of shipwreck at sea goes into the thatched roof cottages of this tiny fishing village on the north German island of Sylt.

Window shutters here are made of ship planks washed ashore. Carved figureheads of forgotten three-masters and ancient brass cabin lanterns decorate its driftwood homes.

For centuries this small community behind the North Sea dikes has lived on the flotsam of shipwreck. After heavy gales the young and old of Rantum walk the windswept beaches looking for whatever the sea has cast up with the tide.

Landlubbers may say it's a mean way to make a living, but Andreas Nissen, Rantum's shore bailiff, only shrugs and says, "Somebody's death is somebody's bread."

Nissen's cottage, built two centuries ago and shipshape from thatched roof to tarred cellar, is solid evidence of the days when beachcombing was a really lucrative enterprise. Every part of its dark sturdy woodwork has a story of its own. A medieval figurehead over the gable window was sawed off the bow of an ill-fated Dutch merchant ship.

Patrol To Shelve 60 Motorcycles

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio Highway Patrol, once more than 80 per cent a motorcycle corps, is eliminating the glamour vehicle of police traffic squads.

Col. George Mingle, patrol superintendent, said that 60 patrol motorcycles will be replaced by other motorized equipment. A couple of cycles will be kept for parades and other use, he added.

The patrol gave three major reasons for replacing the motorcycle: 1—Lack of two-way communications. 2—Meager utilitarian service. 3—Driving hazards.

Truck Route Here Now Is Rerouted

A truck route establishing an alternate lane of travel for traffic east and west on Route 22 over the Scioto River Bridge here has been rerouted again.

State highway department officials have reduced the total load and axle limit on the Main St. bridge here by 50 per cent, with an eye on strengthening the structure.

Truck traffic east and west through Circleville first was routed through Chillicothe. Road work in Chillicothe now has forced the truck route north.

Highway officials said the new truck route for west traffic through here will go north on Route 23 to Frank Road, just south of Columbus, west to Route 104, and then south to Route 22. The reverse applies for east-bound trucks.

Auto traffic is expected to be maintained when workmen begin work on the bridge here in the near future.

Squirrel Season Begins Tuesday

Pickaway County nimrods will have their first chance to unload their rifles and shotguns beginning at dawn Tuesday when the 1953 squirrel season begins.

Clarence Francis, county game protector, said this year's squirrel season will begin at dawn Tuesday and continue until dusk of Oct. 15.

This year's squirrel hunting season promises to be a good one, especially where water is available. The bag limit is four and each licensed hunter may have four squirrels in possession after opening day.

Hunters are reminded that everyone hunting on lands which he does not own will be required to have new 1953 hunting licenses. Persons who have lived in Ohio less than one full year must obtain non-resident licenses.

1953 County Fair To Begin Here Wednesday

4-Day Show Offers Many Top Attractions

Junior Fair Set To Be Largest In Fair History

Pickaway County's 1953 Fair will open its gates wide to the general public for four big days beginning Wednesday at the fairgrounds in Circleville.

Fairgoers this year are offered many stellar events during the four-day agricultural exposition.

Chief among these, of course, will be the proof of the excellence of the county as an agricultural center, with prime livestock, luscious fruits and vegetables, rich grains and beautiful flowers.

But the biggest display at this year's extravaganza on the fairgrounds will be the display of the abilities of the young folks of the county—the community's future farmers and homemakers.

THIS YEAR'S junior fair will be the largest in history, with a record-breaking number of entries in almost all departments.

Livestock will be one of the top features, with competition to be keen in all departments—steers, beef breeding, dairy cattle, swine, sheep, and even poultry and rabbits. All of the livestock is to be kept sheltered adjacent to the showbarn, where judging will be held.

Persons planning to enter exhibits in the county fair are reminded entries will be accepted all day Tuesday. All entries are to be in place by 8 p. m. Tuesday.

A center of activity will be the coliseum, where girls in 4-H Club work will display their accomplishments in booths.

Also in the coliseum will be the fruit, grain and vegetable displays, flower show, Boy Scout and school exhibits, FFA displays and the work of the juvenile Granges.

Another chief center of activity will be the midway, booked again this year by the Circleville Junior Chamber of Commerce. Included on the midway in addition to regular concessions will be food booths operated by local organizations and seven big events for the youngsters—seven "Happy Attractions" rides. The rides include the Ferris wheel, merry-go-round, a swing ride, a fun house, two kiddie rides and a live pony ride.

But the biggest center of attraction will be the fairgrounds grandstand, where at least two big events are scheduled for every day of the 1953 Fair.

FOARING, spitting motors in the AMA sanctioned motorcycle races at 2 p. m. Wednesday will herald the grandstand attractions. Nine thrilling races are planned for opening day fairgoers.

Second big attraction Wednesday will be at 7:30 p. m., a western horse show and rodeo presented by direction of the Ashville Riding Club.

Thursday's big grandstand events begin at 10:30 a. m. with the increasingly popular tractor-pull contest. Five separate classes of competition—by weight—are offered during the contest.

One of the feature events of the Fair will be at 7:30 p. m. Thursday when the band and music festival will be held, presenting more than a dozen bands in concert.

Three special programs are planned at the grandstand Friday. First will be a machinery parade at about 1 p. m., presented by the implement dealers of the county who will show some of the newest and finest machinery on the market.

A brand new event—running horse races—will be offered at 2 p. m., admission free. The special races, six carded for the afternoon, will feature any horsemen of the county who wish to enter their steeds for cash prizes.

At 7:30 p. m. Friday will be the ever-popular spine-tingler, the Lucky Lee Lott Auto Thrill Show.

Wrapping up the 1953 Fair on Saturday will be five special grandstand attractions.

First of the events will be at 11 a. m., when all of the livestock exhibited in junior fair competition is to be paraded before the grandstand.

Following the cattle parade will be a special children's program, sponsored by Circleville Lions Club. The children's program will feature games and races—to the amusement of the oldesters as much as the youngsters—and climaxed by a greased pig chase. Any youngster of the county is eligible to chase the greased pig if he has a place to keep it.

At 2 p. m. Saturday will be a big stock car race, which has become one of the leading sports of the county since the track was opened last year at the fairgrounds.

Saturday evening will be devoted to the 4-H youngsters, beginning at 7 p. m. with a style revue and winding up with the annual livestock sale—when the grand champion steer, market lamb and market pig are to be auctioned.

In addition to all of the regular attractions, two fireworks programs are to be offered during this year's Fair. Fireworks are to be shot at the grandstand at 10 p. m. both Wednesday and Thursday nights. Each program probably will last almost half an hour.

Devereux Plans To Visit Wake

BALTIMORE (AP) — Brig. Gen. P. S. Devereux, now Republican congressman from Maryland's Second District, will return to Wake Island where he and a small garrison of Marines fought against the Japanese in World War II.

Devereux was the major in charge of some 500 men when the island fell to the Japanese Dec. 23, 1941. Before surrendering, the island defenders accounted for 29 enemy planes, a cruiser, two destroyers and an escort vessel.

Now a member of a House armed services subcommittee, Devereux will visit Wake on a round the world inspection junket beginning Sept. 16 and ending Nov. 10.

This Paper To Carry Story By Reporter Freed By Reds

NEW YORK (AP) — "That's not quite the way it was—"

William N. Oatis, AP correspondent freed by the Czechs after two years' imprisonment, was discussing an angle of his own story, due to appear in this newspaper beginning on Monday and running through Friday.

An editor, as editors will, had suggested perhaps a certain passage in Oatis' original draft was too long. Couldn't it be abridged by saying such-and-such?

"No," said Bill Oatis, "that's not quite the way it was."

He was insisting his own story be, in every fact, his own story. He insisted on that throughout the several weeks he was at work on the series of articles.

Oatis started preliminary work on the story while he was still undergoing medical treatment. Doctors suspected he had tuberculosis, aggravated by months in jail cells that many times were cold in winter. First he was forbidden to work; then the doctors said he could work one hour a day—no more.

"But they can't keep me from thinking the other 23 hours," he said at the time. Many of those hours he spent searching his memory along the tortuous route he had followed. He had taken no notes out of prison. He had only his own reporter-trained memory to go by.

There were things to look into, too. Oatis needed detailed maps of the Prague area, to orient himself. He had to study the transcript of the trial as it had been prepared by observers for the U.S. State Department (which denounced his trial as a travesty of justice). He wanted also to see the texts of some of the Czech laws that ostensibly provided the basis of the case against him. He referred frequently to a Czech dictionary, and called upon his own command of the language.

All this time Oatis was, in effect, back in prison. He could look out at the trees on the nearby Westchester Hills, but not venture among them. Doctor's orders.

Finally, after a month's treatment, the tests all showed negative. Oatis came down a broad highway alongside the Hudson River, one sunny afternoon, and took up life in a Manhattan apartment. There he was able to buckle down to serious work on his story. In the hospital he had dictated some preliminary material to his wife, Laurabelle, seated before a typewriter at his bedside. Now he manned the "mill" himself, and he was back in the element.

When he entered newspaper work in Marion, Ind., 20 years before, he had never dreamed of writing such a story. Reporters are expected to report the news, not to make it. But here, through a sequence of unusual developments, he had a story of his own that needed to be told. And he insisted, as he went along, that it be as accurate and objective as he could make it. He changed many a word to get just the meaning he wanted. He rewrote many paragraphs in an effort to make the account as clear as possible.

Today the story is complete, and Oatis is looking into vacation time-tables. Later he will undertake a new assignment for The Associated Press.

Texan Claims National Post

MINERAL WELLS, Tex. (AP) — Wright Morrow of Houston reaffirmed last night his claim to the post of Democratic national committeeman from Texas.

Morrow wrote a letter of resignation to the state Democratic Executive Committee last year when he joined Gov. Allan Shivers and other rebellious Texas Democrats in supporting Republican Dwight Eisenhower for president.

But the state committee turned down his resignation. National Chairman Stephen Mitchell, to whom Morrow had mailed a copy of his resignation letter, wrote Morrow "accepting" the resignation. Since then, both Morrow and Shivers have declared the national committee has no authority to act in the matter.

Society Honors Vet Farmers

TOPSFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Nine farmers with a total of 443 years in farming were honored by the Essex Agricultural Society yesterday at the Topsfield fair.

Among the nine was Mrs. Ellen Russell, 90, of Danvers, who has been farming for 57 years.

Boy Patrolman Saves Lass From Death

CHICAGO (AP) — James Carr, a 13-year-old school patrol boy, snatched a frightened 12-year-old girl from under the wheels of a moving Rock Island Railroad passenger train yesterday.

James, who patrols a crossing on the far southwest side, said four girls were on the tracks when he noticed a suburban train approaching. He chased three of them off the track but the fourth, Kathleen Serafin, told him, "I can't make it, I'm sick."

Kathleen fell as James attempted to drag her off the track and her legs still were lying across the track as the train neared.

Engineer Harold Willet told of the rescue:

"I was making an emergency stop when I saw the boy dart back and pull the girl's leg away in just the split second before the wheels of my engine reached the spot. That was a brave boy."

"I didn't do anything much," James told police in relating the incident. "That's what they gave me this white belt for."

Army Says McCarthy Releases Secret Data, Violating Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army said today Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) disclosed restricted information, violation of law, when he released excerpts from an intelligence report on Siberia and said he lifted portions out of context to pin a "Red" label on the military document.

McCarthy showed reporters photographic copies of 70 pages of the 75-page document on Wednesday, contending it smacked of "clear cut Communist propaganda."

McCarthy acted as chairman of the Senate investigations subcommittee which has been looking into Army security.

This could pose questions of congressional rights in relation to the law. And in any event, it is improbable a charge of violating the law as to restricted documents would be pressed against "any member of Congress in such circumstances."

However, unauthorized release of restricted information is a violation of law punishable by up to $10,000 fine and 10 years imprisonment.

The Army said the document was intended for limited distribution to intelligence officers "to develop understanding of the Soviet people which will be militarily useful in case of war."

"It is obvious that the necessary instruction of officers and men in this field cannot proceed without attempting to enter the mind and thought processes of the Soviet citizen."

An Army spokesman showed reporters an original copy of the document containing on the inside cover this notation:

"This document contains information affecting the national defense of the United States within the meaning of espionage laws, Title 18, Section 793 and 794. The transmission or the revelation of its contents in any manner to an unauthorized person is prohibited by law."

The Army said it declassified the document from its restricted status yesterday but emphasized this was done "as a result of prior disclosure" by McCarthy.

"Restricted" is the lowest of several secrecy classifications the military places on documents.

The Army statement contended McCarthy had withheld from his releases sections which would have made clear the document was not Communist propaganda.

It said the conclusion, on Pages 74 and 75 of the original document, declared in part that the Soviet citizen lives and works almost like a convict. These pages were not released by the senator.

The Army statement quoted the document as saying:

"As was noted previously, such an existence would be intolerable to Americans. American traditions and beliefs militate against every facet of government activity in the U. S. S. R. British and American Communist sympathizers who visit the U. S. S. R. nearly always return in bitter disillusionment. There is no better antidote for radicalism."

The statement said the document, entitled "Psychological and Cultural Traits of Soviet Siberia," was intended for limited distribution to intelligence officers "to develop understanding of the Soviet people which will be militarily useful in case of war."

At the Capitol, McCarthy, told newsmen he had received a copy of the Army statement.

"Neither the Army nor any other branch of government is going to hide dishonesty, corruption or communism by putting a 'secret' label on it," he said.

"If they are putting out Communist propaganda, they can't keep it from the public by stamping it 'secret' or 'restricted' and calling it an indoctrination course."

"This subcommittee has been very careful not to release anything that would jeopardize the security of this nation. We have leaned over backwards on that."

The Army statement described the document as intended "for the use and education of a limited number of officers and men specializing in the thought patterns of the Soviet citizen."

Red Reporter Admits Enemy Holding POWs

Communists Say Men Mostly Airmen Who 'Violated' Manchuria

PANMUNJOM (AP)—A Red source admitted today for the first time that the Communists are holding back some Allied war prisoners who want to go home.

A Communist correspondent, Wilfred Burchett, said a crack U. S. jet pilot and an undisclosed number of other Allied airmen are being held as special prisoners because the Communists say they were shot down over Manchuria, forbidden territory to Allied pilots in the Korean War.

A repatriated American Air Force major, David F. MacGhee of Tampa, Fla., said earlier this week he had learned from an "extremely reliable" Chinese Red that the Communists planned to "untie" 22 U. S. fliers in Manchuria "until the United States recognizes Red China."

Allied officers have said unofficially there may be other airmen still held by the Communists and one source said the number totaled about 35.

BURCHETT OF the Paris L'Humanite, who often reflects official Red thinking, said one of the prisoners is double jet ace, Capt. Harold E. Fischer Jr. of Swea City, Iowa.

Burchett said release of the airmen would have to be negotiated through "diplomatic channels," but he did not elaborate.

The Allied Command demanded Wednesday that the Reds account for about 3,500 allied troops—944 of them Americans—who were known once to be prisoners, but who were not released in the recent POW exchange.

The Communists have indicated they would reject the demand, but have not said when they would reply officially.

Fischer, who disappeared last April 7, became one of the hottest pilots in Korea by scoring his radar gunshots and shooting down Red MIG jets like ducks.

The Red Peiping radio said April 9 the 27-year-old flier was captured.

Patrol Officer Honored For Grabbing Pair

COLUMBUS (AP)—An Ohio Highway Patrol corporal who risked his life to capture two Lima State Hospital fugitives today became the 15th patrol officer to receive the O. W. Merrell Meritorious Service Award.

He is Cpl. Raymond H. Opp, a native of Forest, Hardin County, now assigned to the Wilmington headquarters of the patrol.

The award, an inscribed .38 special target pistol, was presented the corporal in a brief ceremony in the offices of Col. George Mingle, patrol superintendent.

The annual award was originated by O. W. Merrell when he was director of highways in 1933, organization year for the patrol.

The incident for which Cpl. Opp was honored took place July 15, 1952, while the officer was assigned to Sidney. The two hospital fugitives had been trapped in a water tender of a mail train.

Tear gas failed to force the two from the tender and the fugitives declared they would not be taken alive.

Police at the scene decided to fill the tender with water in an effort to dislodge the fugitives. Cpl. Opp ordered the flooding stopped when the water reached a few inches from the top and the escapees still refused to surrender.

He had the tank drained. Then, putting aside his weapons, Cpl. Opp entered the tank in which the water was still knee deep. After a 15-minute battle among the steel baffles and pipes criss-crossing the interior of the tender, the fugitives were subdued, handcuffed and removed.

JAN HAJDUKIEWICZ, Polish truce team official who bolted to freedom at a Korean airfield and won political asylum under American protection, tells a news conference (above) in Seoul that he deserted his Red comrades because the Communist rule of Poland is "based on fear." The Communists have accused the United States Army of "kidnaping" him.

Political Scientist Claims Solons Push Ike Too Much

WASHINGTON (AP)—The American Political Science Association was told today that the Eisenhower administration has become disorganized by letting Congress move in on White House authority.

Dr. Herman M. Somers, chairman of the Haverford (Pa.) College's department of political science, had both praise and criticism for the administrative policies of the Republican regime.

He observed that the broad lines of administrative action to date have been "thoughtful and sound." On the other hand, he commented, there has been "a dramatic decline in the role and leadership of the executive which has had a stunning effect on the bureaucracy."

The latter condition has come about, Somers said, by either the "abdication to Congress, or the permitted usurpation by Congress of executive authority, which has been the source of basic difficulties for the executive branch."

SOMERS expressed great interest in what he called President Eisenhower's attempt to make use of the Cabinet as a body in which basic decisions are made "collectively."

But he said "no one can recall a time when the prestige of federal employment was at a lower ebb." He said the administration has managed to make employees feel their jobs are insecure.

He referred particularly to the State Department where he said the personnel situation has reached "some sort of nadir" and "internal demoralization is rampant both in the departmental staff and in the foreign service."

Somers asserted the department appears to have "abdicated to the raiders in the short-sighted pursuit of congressional harassment."

Athens Leader Dies At Age 89

ATHENS (AP)—Dr. Thomas R. Biddle, 89, Athens physician, banker and industrialist, died in his home here yesterday.

He was a life member of the Ohio University board of trustees. He practiced medicine in Athens for 10 years prior to 1902, when he entered the coal business with his father-in-law, C. L. Poston. Subsequently, Dr. Biddle headed four different coal companies, the Morris Poston Coal Co., Millfield Coal and Mining Co., Sugar Creek Coal Co. and the Poston Consolidated coal Co.

IKE-LABOR SPLIT SEEN AS DURKIN QUILTS POST

Durkin Bow-Out Rings Down Curtain On Eisenhower's Bold Labor Stroke

WASHINGTON (AP)—Martin P. Durkin's sudden bow-out as secretary of labor rang down the curtain in less than eight months on a bold political stroke attempted by President Eisenhower.

Democrats predicted the administration would not find another man with a strong union background to take the post. Republicans, for the most part, had little to say about the sudden turn.

One Democratic senator, Maybank of South Carolina, said he "would seriously suggest that others in the Cabinet resign."

Sen. Hill (D-Ala.), a long-time member of the Senate Labor Committee, said:

"They'll never get another Marty Durkin for the job. They'll have to take someone now who is willing to march in the ranks of the Taft-Hartleyites."

This reference to the controversial Taft-Hartley labor relations law struck at the heart of Durkin's falling out with the administration.

IN HANDING in his resignation, Durkin accused the White House of breaking an agreement with him to seek 19 specific proposed changes in the law.

Maybank said he was not surprised at the resignation, because he said "this administration has not done anything for labor, for agriculture or for the taxpayer."

Asked if his suggestion about other resignations was aimed at Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson and Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, Maybank said Benson has "done nothing except create confusion in the farm belt" and Humphrey raised interest rates "for veterans and homeowners."

Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.) said that although Durkin hails from his state, "any comment I would make on his resignation would be a shot in the dark."

However, Rep. Kearns (R-Pa.), a member of the House Labor Committee, said he thought Durkin's ideas for changing Taft-Hartley were "too self-styled."

"Amendments to the Taft-Hartley law will be written here in Congress," Kearns said.

Democratic National Chairman Stephen Mitchell commented:

"It is now obvious that the appointment was one of political expediency rather than a sincere effort by the administration to solve the problems of working people."

"MR. DURKIN has a reputation for sincerity and patience. His patience was apparently tried too long, and his sincerity still is beyond question."

Sen. Kilgore (D-WVa.), described Durkin's position "in the Republican big-business administration" as "like an ambassador to a foreign court."

"Yes, a union man was appointed secretary of labor and you can count the friends of labor in the new administration on one finger."

But one veteran observer of doings on Capitol Hill, who declined to be identified, declared:

"The more hard-boiled Republicans do not anticipate any loss of popular support among the mass of voters because of the organized-labor leaders' decision to fight the Eisenhower Administration and the GOP generally."

"They do not believe that the vast majority of workingmen and their families are influenced too deeply by the attitudes and pronouncements of their professional union bosses. There is a great gap between the political hierarchy and the 17 million union members."

"They note that, although the three great labor organizations joined behind a Democratic campaign solidly in last year's campaign for the first time, President Eisenhower carried every industrial state and industrial city. He even won in John L. Lewis' usually well-disciplined mining areas. They also have the late Senator Taft's unprecedented majority in Ohio in 1950 as further evidence."

Cabinet Aide Says Pledges Are Broken

Resignation Revealed By Angry Secretary; President Is Silent

WASHINGTON (AP)—An uneasy political honeymoon between President Eisenhower and organized labor appeared ended today with the angry resignation of Martin P. Durkin as secretary of labor.

Durkin, a union leader and a Democrat, quit his Cabinet post with a charge that the Eisenhower administration had broken an agreement with him on recommendations to be made in changing the Taft-Hartley labor law.

Presidents George Meany of the AFL and Walter Reuther of the CIO quickly sided with Durkin and accused Eisenhower of failing to live up to promises made to organized labor.

There was no comment from Eisenhower, outside of a letter accepting Durkin's resignation and praising his service as secretary.

Thus the President faces the task of picking two men to fill highly important government posts — a chief justice to succeed Fred M. Vinson and a secretary of labor to replace Durkin.

WHITE HOUSE Press Secretary James C. Hagerty told newsmen in Denver today he had no idea when either selection might be announced, but he said the President was hard at work on both assignments.

Eisenhower arranged to confer at his vacation headquarters here with Vice President Nixon, who flew back to Denver with the chief executive last night from Washington where they attended funeral services for Vinson.

Nixon and Eisenhower, together with a group of presidential aides, reportedly discussed both the court and labor posts in Washington and it appeared likely they would continue the discussion today.

There were indications, too, that Len W. Hall, chairman of the Republican National Committee, had joined in the talk of a successor to Durkin. Hall also flew to Denver with the President.

Labor leaders were outspoken in their beliefs on the Durkin move.

"It has long been a tradition in the labor movement that once an

Ohio Corn Average Set At 55 Bushels

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department said yesterday in its monthly crop report it expects Ohio to yield the following amounts of its important crops:

Corn 55 bushels per acre and production 194,205,000 bushels; oats 42 bushels per acre and production 48,468,000 bushels.

Soybeans for beans 22.5 bushels per acre and production 21,712,000 bushels. Sugar beets 12.5 tons per acre and production 175,000 tons.

State To Spend $105 Per Person
COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio will spend $105.52 a year the next two years for every man, woman and child in the state.

Auditor James A. Rhodes based these figures on estimated expenditures of $1,877,061,068 for the 1953-55 biennium and the 1950 population of 7,948,627.

agreement is reached the parties abide by it," Meany said. "Mr. Durkin is schooled in that tradition. He resigned because he could not continue serving on a team where agreements are not kept."

Meany and Reuther and their organizations, as did most of the rest of organized labor's leaders, supported Democrat Adlai Stevenson against Eisenhower in last fall's presidential elections.

AFTER HIS landslide victory, Eisenhower chose Durkin, a staunch Democrat and president of the AFL's plumbers union, for the labor Cabinet post. Durkin himself expressed surprise and the late Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) called the appointment "incredible."

The selection was widely regarded as an effort by the new administration to woo union support, since they had comprised the largest single segment of the country opposed to the Republicans.

With Durkin's appointment most union leaders adopted a "wait and see" attitude toward the new administration. The statements of Meany and Reuther, accusing the administration of breaking faith with organized labor, seemed to indicate a parting of the ways.

The 59-year-old Durkin told a packed news conference late yesterday he had submitted his resignation Aug. 31, ten days earlier, when he became convinced the administration had "broken" commitments with him on proposed changes in the Taft-Hartley law.

"I feel they are not going to carry those agreements out," Durkin said. "In fact, I was told so."

He talked it over with Eisenhower, now back in Denver after a one-day return here, in a half-hour conference yesterday morning. He said Eisenhower asked him to stay on, but he refused.

ASKED WHETHER he would have remained had Eisenhower changed his views about the T-H proposals, Durkin replied, "I think so."

Durkin said he had reached agreement on proposed T-H changes with White House aides he assumed had Eisenhower's authority to take such action. He said they included Bernard Shanley and Gerald Morgan, two members of Eisenhower's staff.

The President attended one negotiating meeting on the matter, Durkin said, and he assumed Eisenhower "had agreed" to the suggested amendments.

Durkin said there were 19 proposals thus agreed to. This is the same number of changes contained in a labor message prepared for Eisenhower to send to Congress before it adjourned last Aug. 3. The message was widely circulated and published but the White House said it was simply a "preliminary draft." It was never formally submitted to Congress.

Business groups were greatly perturbed when the message became known and said it was too favorable to organized labor.

tured after being shot down in a dogfight over Manchuria. His wingman last saw him battling a Red fighter near the Yalu River boundary of Manchuria.

The Reds obviously were on a spot in the Fischer case—they previously had said they sent back all Allied prisoners who wanted to go home, yet their official Peiping radio had admitted he was captured alive.

MEANWHILE, the first of 14,700 Chinese war prisoners who have renounced communism arrived in the Korean neutral zone shaking their fists and shouting, "Death to the Communists," at Red observers.

Nearly 1,000 anti-Communist Chinese entered the newly-built stockades at the sprawling "Indian Village" near Paamunjom, where they will be guarded by Indian troops.

Most wore undershirts stamped with the Chinese Nationalist sunburst flag. Many were tattooed with anti-Communist slogans.

An interpreter said the captives shouted: "We will go back to the China mainland and kill Mao (Premier Mao Tse-tung of Red China)" and "crush the stooges and running dogs of Russia."

The Allies are turning over to the five-nation repatriation commission 14,700 Chinese and about 8,000 North Koreans who have refused to return to their homelands. The Communists have said they would turn over about 300 Koreans and about 20 non-Koreans (mostly Americans) whom they claim have refused repatriation.

An Indian spokesman said the Reds have made no official report but they may turn over these men about Sept. 17.

U.S. Business Looking For 'New Money'

Would-Be Borrowers Show No Fear Of Any Slump In Future

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Business is out this month actively looking for "new money." The would-be borrowers show no sign of fearing a slump and being ready to draw back into their shells.

Corporate debt has about doubled in the last seven years as business seeks new money to finance the building of plants and buying of equipment. It also borrows because inflation and growth have boosted its need of working capital.

After the summer lull, September is seeking an active revival of offerings of new corporate securities. Prime example is American Telephone & Telegraph's plan to seek a record 625 million dollars this fall.

New capital issues (excluding refunding) by corporations this year apparently are going to just about equal last year's record total of nearly nine billion dollars, the Northern Trust Co. of Chicago predicts.

In a survey out today, the Department of Commerce and the Securities and Exchange Commission foresee a slight lull in year's end in the present record pace of business spending for plant and equipment.

"Capital outlays may fall from current peak levels," the Chicago bank agrees, "but if they do it will probably be because earnings are down—a requirement and source of financing that usually rise and fall together."

Business has been financing its expansion more by using its retained earnings and its increasing depreciation reserves than through issuing new stocks and bonds, however.

A Federal Reserve Board survey of 300 large corporations shows that in the last five years bond and stock financing has raised only one-fifth of the total money spent. Profits put back into the business and three-fifths. Out and out borrowing supplied the rest.

Since the end of World War II, the total of corporate debt has risen from about 100 billion dollars to almost 200 billion dollars.

This huge total of debt, some fear, could be embarrassing in a recession. But Marcus Nadler, consulting economist to the Hanover Bank, New York, sees little need for concern yet.

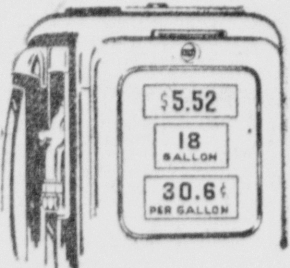

"The long-term debt is well spaced and is being amortized," he says. "The short-term debt reflects primarily the higher cost of doing business and of large inventories at current prices."

Dr. Nadler calls the financial position of most corporations sound.

Newscaster Tells Rotary Of Air Work

Behind the scenes operations necessary to prepare fifteen minute programs on radio and TV were outlined to members of Circleville Rotary at their meeting Thursday noon when Chet Long, Columbus news commentator, spoke before the club.

With nine years experience as a radio commentator and several years on TV, Long said at least three persons are needed to prepare and bring the radio news to the listeners, while in TV at least 17 persons are required and, in some instances, 28 persons are involved in a fifteen minute news program.

He made a comparison between radio and TV programs and said that there is a great difference in that there is visual contact in TV by the listeners. News commentators feel it is an honor to come into the homes on TV, he said, and the important thing for a commentator to remember is that he should be himself.

Much preparation is necessary in gathering material, pictures and other information which will be of interest to the listeners when there is but fifteen minutes for a program, he said, and it is necessary for the commentator to have the full cooperation of the large numbers of persons who are necessary to prepare and put the program on the air.

LONG CONCLUDED his talk by relating some of the humorous incidents which have happened to him during his years as a commentator, in some cases quite embarrassing incidents.

Dr. Nicholas Holmes of Chillicothe, district governor of Rotary, will make his official visit to the club next Thursday.

Tax Levy Asked For TB Patients

Pickaway County commissioners have proposed an additional tax to provide adequate treatment for tuberculosis patients who are under hospital care. The step is intended for financial help of needy cases.

A resolution declaring it necessary to levy a tax in excess of the 10 mill limitation was filed earlier this week with Pickaway County board of elections. The proposed levy—three tenths of one mill for five years—will be placed before voters in November.

The resolution filed by the commission specified in part the levy would be used "for the care, treatment and maintenance of residents of Pickaway County... who are suffering from tuberculosis at hospitals with which the county commissioners have contracted..."

WASHINGTON (AP)—For eight months as secretary of labor, Martin P. Durkin acted meek and mild. Yesterday, he quit with a blast at the White House, although not specifically at President Eisenhower.

In the eight months, he stayed pretty much out of sight, making only a few speeches, and holding no more than six news conferences, including yesterday's when he disclosed his resignation.

He worked behind the scenes to get changes in the Taft-Hartley labor relations law, which Eisenhower had said needed changing. As recently as Aug. 25 Durkin expressed confidence he was making progress.

On Aug. 31 he handed in his resignation, effective yesterday. He would not explain at yesterday's news conference what happened in those six days between Aug. 25 and 31 except to say that he had an agreement from the White House that the Eisenhower administration would push for 19 changes in T-H and that the agreement had been broken.

Here is the background:

Last Dec. 31 Eisenhower tapped Durkin to be secretary of labor. Durkin, then nearing 59, was a Democrat who had voted for the Democratic presidential candidate, Adlai Stevenson. The AFL plumbers' union, of which Durkin was president, wanted T-H repealed outright.

During the presidential campaign Eisenhower had talked of changing, but not repealing, T-H. As soon as Eisenhower picked him Durkin said he thought T-H could be changed, without repeal, and still please all hands.

The reaction then of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio), father of T-H and most powerful Republican in Congress, to the Durkin appointment is now historic. "Incredible," Taft said.

Durkin's reaction to Taft's reaction was this: he said he didn't think Taft had meant anything personal. It set the pattern for his eight months in Washington, until yesterday: never say anything to make anybody mad.

On Feb. 2, in his state of the union message, Eisenhower told Congress T-H should be changed promptly. The President said Durkin's Labor Department was beginning work at once on specific recommendations for Congress.

The House and Senate Labor Committees held long hearings on proposed changes in T-H. But none of the proposals came from the administration. What was more extraordinary was that Durkin never appeared before the committees.

He told his news conference yesterday he hadn't gone before the committees because the Eisenhower administration never had made up its mind on what changes it wanted.

Durkin tried calling a conference of union, management and public-at-large representatives to work out some agreements on changing T-H. This conference met and collapsed in discord.

Eisenhower himself had previously expressed belief that if labor and management could be brought together they could work out solutions to their problems.

Finally Durkin's Labor Department staff began conferences with members of Eisenhower's White House staff to reach agreement on T-H changes which the administration would offer Congress. Taft, Durkin said, sat in on some of these conferences.

Durkin said yesterday agreement was reached with the White House staff on T-H changes shortly before Taft's death, which occurred July 31, and included some changes that Taft had previously proposed.

Congress quit three days later, Aug. 3. Shortly before it quit a proposed message to Congress, containing 19 suggested changes in T-H, was widely circulated on Capitol Hill although it was never sent to Congress formally.

The White House described it as a "preliminary draft" of a message Eisenhower intended to send. Durkin says they were fair to unions and management—but business organizations criticized them as too favorable to unions.

That Durkin thought he was making progress seems apparent from what he did on Aug. 11. Peter T. Schoemann, who had succeeded Durkin as active head of the plumbers' union, blasted the administration for what he called a "pattern of plunder."

Durkin rushed to the administration's defense. He said Eisenhower

2 Weeks From Now Said Poor Time To Visit New York City

NEW YORK (AP)—There are a great many hotel rooms in this town—must run into the thousands—but if you haven't already made a reservation starting about two weeks from today it would be strongly advisable to count on staying home and burning leaves.

Three of the year's biggest sports events are scheduled to be packed into a little more than a week's time here.

First among the three spectacles in which championships will be involved comes the heavyweight battle between Rocky Marciano and Roland La Starza at the Polo Grounds on the night of Sept. 24. Two days later, Native Dancer, the 3-year-old champion, will make his run at Tom Fool, the handicap king, in the Sysonby Mile at Belmont Park. On the following Wednesday the Yankees and the Dodgers open their homeric tussle at Yankee Stadium.

From this distance it begins to look as though the odds in favor of Marciano keeping his title will had "steadfastly" adhered to the "pledge" to make amendments in T-H and even then was "actively engaged" in preparing them.

And on Aug. 25 Durkin seemed extremely optimistic. He said the President would soon send the recommendations, which he said had been agreed upon by the White House staff, to Congress.

On Aug. 31 Durkin sent his resignation to Eisenhower. He said yesterday the White House agreement with him on T-H changes had been broken. He said he was not sure Eisenhower himself had ever approved the 19 changes.

But he said he would have stayed on as secretary if Eisenhower had altered his administration's position on the changes.

lengthen gradually right up to the weigh-in, and that the better from Brockton might enter the ring a 5-to-1 favorite, or even better.

Why this is so we do not pretend to know. In our mind, La Starza figures to have a real good chance. But the promoters have had much difficulty selling the comparison between Roland and another clever boxer named Gene Tunney, and the talk invariably gets around to the established fact that Marciano can chill a man with one wallop from either fist.

Sampling of press box opinion we took the other day would indicate that the older horse, Tom Fool, will command heavier backing than Native Dancer in their dream race, notwithstanding the latter's tremendous two-season record and the fact he will have a pull in the weights. Some who picked the Fool said they would switch their choice if the race were to be at a mile and a half. They think the Dancer needs a lot of running room.

The Yankees broke every rule of baseball superstition by holding their "victory" celebration on the train coming home from the West the other day. The thought of throwing a whinding before the flag is clinched sends shudders down many spines, but the Bombers feel they are above such childish fantasies, and maybe they are. Perhaps more significant in any preview of the big playoff is the fact that Billy Loe, the youngest and most unpredictable of the Brooklyn pitchers, turned in a four-hitter against the Phils on Labor Day. This was indeed something, because Billy had not gone the route in two months and Manager Charlie Dressen was beginning to wonder if he ever would again.

If Billy has come out of his trance it is important Series news, for there had been a question of which Dodger hurler outside Carl Erskine, Preacher Roe and Russ Meyer might be risked a start against the Yanks. A Loe at his best could make a great difference.

Hartman Warns City School Problems Can't End Quickly

In an easy, friendly manner, Circleville's new superintendent of city schools gave the unvarnished facts Thursday night to parents of the community's school children.

Superintendent George Hartman, named to the city school helm earlier this summer, told a large Parent-Teacher Association turnout that Circleville's school problems probably will get a little worse before they get better.

The new school head, in his first major public address here, promised he will urge a broad program to improve the city's school facilities at the earliest possible date. First, however, he warned, it is essential that he "become acquainted in Circleville" and have a full opportunity to analyze the task before him.

More than 150 persons attended the meeting of the city PTA in Circleville High School auditorium. It was the organization's first meeting of the new school year. Teachers made up a large portion of the audience.

ALTHOUGH Hartman reminded his listeners there is no easy cure-all for Circleville's share of the problems that face schools throughout the nation, his talk sounded a cheering note in realistic views and assurance of long-range planning. As generally expected, he envisioned a bond issue as eventual target for the city's school-development program.

Hartman, named superintendent when Frank Fischer announced his desire to return to a teaching post in the city school system, was introduced to the PTA gathering by Mrs. Carle Snider. Mrs. Snider was in charge of the meeting's program in the absence of Attorney Joe Adkins, chairman of the program committee.

The new superintendent said he is already aware of difficult questions facing the city's school setup but expressed belief "we are off to a wonderful start" toward finding the answers.

"We face major problems here in Circleville," he said, "and I feel that, as time goes on, the problems will become more acute."

Hartman drew a wave of laughter from his listeners when he said he was deeply impressed by the "number of so many dissatisfied persons" in his first contacts with the city's educational system. He promised immediate efforts to "get to the bottom" of dissatisfaction, wherever found.

"I realize," he said, "that the situation may actually need much greater speed than I will be able to give it at the beginning, but first I must become acquainted in Circleville before I can adequately tackle our problems."

AS HE MOVES to bring about continued improvement of the school system, Hartman stressed he will have particular care for the protection of "the many fine things already present here." No general overhaul of the city's educational scene, he assured the PTA group, is intended.

Hartman paid tribute to the higher caliber of Circleville's boys and girls of school age. He said his impression along this line was one of the foremost he had in first taking charge. As an illustration of this point, he mentioned in particular the above-average care local school children have for their books.

Primary step in tackling the duties of his office, he told the PTA, will be to "develop an attitude of cooperation" among all concerned. He said he is especially anxious to "get out and spend as much time as I can among the elementary schools."

Hartman after the meeting explained he feels the heaviest weight of the city's school problems appears to rest on the first six elementary grades. His reference presumably was to adequate classroom space and the long-recognized problem of having pupils attend the school nearest their homes.

Later in his talk he mentioned directly the matter of pupil transfers. Parents in the past have frequently objected when their children have been transferred from one school to another in an effort to make the best of limited classroom space.

"Meeting the problem of our large enrollments," Hartman said, "will probably need a number of temporary procedures. And even with efforts along this line it will be found that some problems just can't be solved as we would like to have them—even with all the transferring that's been done, some of it under protest."

HARTMAN DIVERTED briefly from material problems faced by the city school system to assure the parents and teachers that special attention will be given to the moral and religious side of education. "Wherever we can," he said, "we will enrich moral training in our schools," warning at the same time that such a policy will have to be held within carefully planned limitations.

Special classes may eventually be introduced to a degree this phase of education, he said.

The new school administrator said it is inevitable that Circleville's school problems will continue to grow for an indefinite period, and that it will "probably be a matter of years" before major corrective steps can be established. A bond issue, as the key means of such improvement, will need much preparation and study before any proposal is actually placed before the voters, he pointed out.

City Guard Unit To Be Filmed At Logan Elm

Approximately two dozen members of Circleville's National Guard unit will participate Saturday afternoon in a tree-planting ceremony at Logan Elm Park while a movie camera puts it all on film.

The film, along with similar scenes being recorded elsewhere in Ohio, will be distributed nationwide as a promotional medium. Tree-planting programs have been encouraged throughout the state in the cause of conservation and scenic beauty.

In addition, the film recorded at Logan Elm will touch on the historical background of the local area. A tie-in for National Guard recruiting purposes will also be included.

Plans for the ceremony were announced by Sfc. Mack Wise, unit administrator for Co. I of the 166th Regimental Combat Team, Circleville's Guard unit. Wise succeeded M-Sgt. Walter Gilmore as unit administrator on Aug. 24.

THE LOCAL tree-planting program may be expanded to include new trees around city school buildings, Wise explained. He said tentative arrangements have been made to have Ted Lewis, famed bandsman and singer, return to his native city here for the day's activities.

An effort will be made to have the film available for showing here during the 1953 Pumpkin Show.

New Floor Care Ends Waxing

One of the most difficult jobs of housekeeping is to keep linoleum and asphalt tile floors waxed and gleaming. Now, thanks to Glaxo, it is no longer necessary to wax and scrub. All you do is apply Glaxo with a brush above twice a year. It maintains a high lustre, non slip coating that seals out dirt. Glaxo dries in one hour and is water clear. It's cheaper than wax in the long run, besides saving a terrific amount of work, plus truly a beautiful floor. Glaxo is available at Harpster and Yost Hardware, 107 E. Main St., Circleville.

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Young lawyers in St. Louis will be able to serve "internships" to get courtroom experience.

Everett Hullverson, president of the Lawyers' Association of St. Louis, said yesterday he believes it is the first such plan in the nation.

Veteran trial lawyers will take the newcomers to the profession under their wings for about five jury trials, he said.

The internship, similar to that given doctors, will not be compulsory but Hullverson said many young lawyers have been anxious for such a program.

Joke Ain't Funny To Nearby Cop

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—While watching armored - car guards carry money bags into the federal reserve bank about noon yesterday, four men parked in a car nearby jokingly discussed the ease with which a holdup could be staged.

Their conversation wasn't quite so funny when reviewed later at city jail where they were booked for vagrancy and investigation.

The man who had lounged so casually against a lamp post near their car was Vice Squad Capt. Fred Littlepage.

Blondes Hold Edge In '53 Beauty Test

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—The girls that gentlemen prefer—blondes—have the edge so far in talent and swim suit preliminaries for the Miss America 1954 crown.

Three of the four lovelies who won in the past two nights of competition in the two divisions are golden tressed. The fourth is a brunette.

Tonight is the last round of preliminaries before the grand finals tomorrow night, when one of the 52 entries will be given the crown and robes of Miss America—plus $50,000 in awards.

Last night's winners who picked out coveted points toward the title were Miss South Dakota, Delores Jerde of Spearfish, and Miss Wyoming, Elaine Lois Holkenbrink of Torrington, both blue-eyed beauties of 19.

With them in the preliminary winners' circle are Miss Pennsylvania, Evelyn Margaret Ay of Ephrata, and Miss Virginia, Anne Lee Ciglis of Norfolk, who took the honors Wednesday night. Evelyn is an ash-blonde and Anne a brunette.

Miss South Dakota and Miss Wyoming won in the talent and bathing suit categories respectively.

The plaque will extol him as "The graduate who has done the least for the advancement of good music in America."

Oil Firm Agrees To Move Station

POMPTON LAKES, N. J. (AP)—The Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey is going to demolish a gasoline station so Frank Winters can have a view from his back porch.

Winters opposed the building of a lubricatorium wing to the gas station because it blocked his view of the street.

An attorney for the big oil company told the local zoning board last night that they would tear down their old station and rebuild a new one with a lubricatorium eight feet back from Winters' property so he can see the town's main street.

West Europe Asked To Aid World Bank

More Investment Money Said Needed To Help Poor Areas

WASHINGTON (AP)—Western European nations were called on today by the World Bank to make more investment money available and help it develop other areas.

The bank's annual report showed that the ten highly industrialized nations of Western Europe have made fully available to the bank only $62,804,000 in its seven years of existence. Another $308,618,000 is also available, but subject to conditions that make it hard for the bank to count on when it is considering loans.

These are the highly industrialized countries able to produce the goods that underdeveloped countries need. They had pledged $558,540,000 for the bank's active lending. The countries are: Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Italy, The Netherlands, Norway, Sweden and the United Kingdom.

The United States is the only country which has put up its full pledge—$572,500,000. Canada with $53,365,000, has nearly reached that point.

A similar appeal made last year brought the unconditional release of $26,600,000 worth of European currencies in the past twelve months that ended June 30. World Bank officials say that more and more is being released every year.

Britain released 60 million pounds (168 million dollars) last year, the bank notes, but only for use in the sterling area and after consultation in each case.

The report was prepared for delivery today by President Eugene Black at the opening of the eighth annual meeting of the bank's board of governors. The meeting is scheduled to last through Saturday.

It points to the fact that supplies are now more freely available outside the United States and that well over a third of its spending last year was beyond its limits. The proportion of non-dollar loans also increased.

But unless the European governments release more funds to the bank, it warns that its activities may be restrained. Reluctance to do so, it points out, also reduces possible exports by European members.

Loans to European countries amounted to equivalent of $34,333,464, in the $178,600,000 lent during the twelve months that ended June 30. That brought the total on loan in Europe to $374,000,000—more than has been lent to any other area and nearly half the bank's total loans.

The bank made no Middle East loans in the period covered, but did put fourteen million dollars in to railway development on North Rhodesia.

The report devotes a considerable section to a new phenomenon in underdeveloped countries, the establishment of what it calls "institutions to weigh government policy and guide government investment in economic development."

It cites the National Bank for Development in Brazil, the National Planning Council in Colombia and the Development Board in Iraq.

Men Found 'Best' In Suicide Tries

ROME (AP)—A world congress on figures has been told that more women try to commit suicide than men, but the men do a better job of trying. At least, that's the situation in Rome.

Dean: Went To Front With Gun To Show The Boys How To Fight

NEW YORK (AP)—You don't have to meet a man in this world to learn something from him.

I never met Maj. Gen. William Dean. I got to Korea late in July 1950, a few days after he was reported missing in combat. This I have always regretted. I would like to have seen him in action.

He is free again now, after nearly three years in enemy prison camps. But although I never met him personally, he has enriched my life by teaching me two things:

1. Don't sell faith short.
2. A man's example lives beyond his presence.

When I first reached Korea, Gen. Dean's 24th Infantry Division was still retreating after a series of confused but magnificent delaying stands to hold up an overwhelming North Korean Army that, had it known how to use its power, would have had the entire peninsula in three short weeks.

A still-dazed American officer told me:

"We thought all we had to do was to stand on a hill and show the U. S. uniform, and all those little brown gooks would run back north where they came from."

In those dark days the 24th Division had suffered terrible losses. And each day it suffered more. It is less a criticism of the men than it is of America to say the division was unready for combat.

The men weren't in proper shape. They were short of the right weapons. And so it was that Gen. Dean, a first class fighting man, had to go up and do what no division commander should be required to do.

He had to go up and show the boys how. He himself was the 24th Division. He was the spearhead of an ill-prepared America—in the flesh. He had to do what they teach a commander at West Point he shouldn't have to do. He had to go to the bare front, forget his two stars, and lead like a second lieutenant. So did his colonels, including rugged Dick Stephens, later known as "The Derby."

Miss Louise Southward of Persen spent last Friday with her mother, Mrs. Ellen Southward, who is caring for Mrs. Lizzie Edwards at her home here. Mrs. Edwards recently fell and broke her hip. Her condition is reported good.

Miss Jean Spangler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Spangler of Derby and Mr. Jay Gossard of Mt. Sterling, were united in marriage by the Rev. Mr. Snyder at the Methodist church in Mt. Sterling last Friday, Sept. 4th. They had dinner in Circleville and then went to their own home in Columbus. Their attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Deardurf of Mt. Sterling.

City Youth, 17, Struck By Auto

William Skeens, 17, of 569 E. Main St., suffered a fractured right leg late Wednesday when he was struck by an auto on Lancaster Pike near E. Main St.

The accident happened at about 10:40 p. m. Wednesday when autos coming from the stock car races at the fairgrounds were lined up on Lancaster Pike awaiting the traffic light to change.

Police Sgt. Turney Ross said an auto operated by Barbara Ann Cain, 20, of Hamilton, was traveling east on Main St. and turned left onto Lancaster Pike after having stopped for the light.

The officer said Skeens, who had been in a car stopped by the light on Lancaster Pike, jumped from the car and was hit by the Cain auto as he started to run across the street.

William Plum, a sheriff's auxiliary who had been on duty at the stock car races, handled traffic until Ross arrived. Skeens was treated in Berger Hospital.

ACTION IS THE LURE

WITH THE FOOTBALL season just around the corner, and organized baseball heading toward pennants and the world series, interest of the public will soon be transferred from the diamond to the grid-iron. There is every indication the forthcoming season—both college and professional—will be one of great competition, with attendance surpassing the amazing crowds of previous years.

Typical of the situation is interest in the game between Oklahoma University and Notre Dame, scheduled for Norman, Okla., on September 26. The stadium at Norman seats 57,647 persons. With exception of 8,000 tickets reserved for the student body, all tickets were sold months ago. Many fell into the hands of scalpers, and it is reported that the price now is $40 each, with many takers. Special trains will be run from many cities.

This promises to be one of the outstanding football events of the season, because of the fame of the two teams and the fact that Notre Dame is making its first appearance in Oklahoma.

Similar interest in forthcoming games is noted throughout the country. Attendance at major games will be limited only to the capacity of the fields. A single word describes the attraction of football—action. Baseball has it to a certain extent, but baseball has become too scientific in recent years. Football is more rough and ready.

Twenty-two young athletes, always playing for keeps, offer a spectacle to which Americans have taken by the millions. They love action, and football supplies it to a greater extent than any other sport.

CONFUSION CONFOUNDED

THE GOVERNMENT HAS further confused the wheat acreage situation by issuing a new directive permitting additional seeding, presumably as a cover crop or for pasture, but not to be harvested as grain.

Farmers had been notified how many acres they can seed for harvesting, remainder of the land to be devoted to other crops. Then the Department of Agriculture told the farmer to go ahead and seed all his land, but he must harvest only the percentage already assigned.

That sounds simple enough. But is it? The farmer must go to the county PMA office and designate on a map, with legal descriptions, the land he will seed for harvest and the part he will not harvest.

Not only that, but the farmer must destroy his excess acreage some time before harvest. He will not be permitted to wait until the entire crop has matured, and then harvest the best of it. Instead he must

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Germany has had a long tradition of resisting the lava-like flow of the Slavic and Mongolian hordes into Europe. As far back as 1222, the Mongols appeared in Europe. Already in existence were the Teutonic Knights, a German order devoted to the German Church of Mary the Virgin, stationed at a hospital in Acre. In 1198, this group became a military order, known as the Teutonic Knights.

After the Crusades, these knights moved to Germany where they were placed on the eastern borders of Germany where they played a role in the establishment of Brandenburg and Mecklenburg. Lubeck became a center of their activities and their missionary efforts extended as far as Riga in Livonia (now a part of Russia called Latvia). Here the Livonian Brothers of the Sword was established.

The main function of the Teutonic Knights was to Christianize the nations on the eastern boundary of Germany and to encourage German pioneers to migrate to these areas. In this capacity, in 1234, they transferred their now large holdings to the Pope, which they received back as fiefs—in a word, they had no other lord, in this feudal era, but the Pope.

The significance of this chapter in German history is that the tradition of Germany, as a wall against which the Slavs and Mongols often struck, continues in the race memory of the Teutonic peoples to this day. The victory of Dr. Konrad Adenauer is a defeat for Russia.

The Russians so regard it. It is an acknowledgment that Germany is part of the Western Christian world which, before World War II, stopped at the Oder River, but now stops at the Elbe by virtue of the Yalta Agreement.

Had Adenauer been defeated, or had his victory been less pronounced, it would have been possible to say that Germany, after two unsuccessful wars, had lost its historic sense and that the German people were prepared to submit to Russian conquest. For that was the realistic issue in this election. Adenauer courageously accepted the risk of a clear-cut opposition to Russia; his opponents were nationalists, which could only have led to the forerunner of absorption in the Soviet Empire by the device of a Peoples' Government.

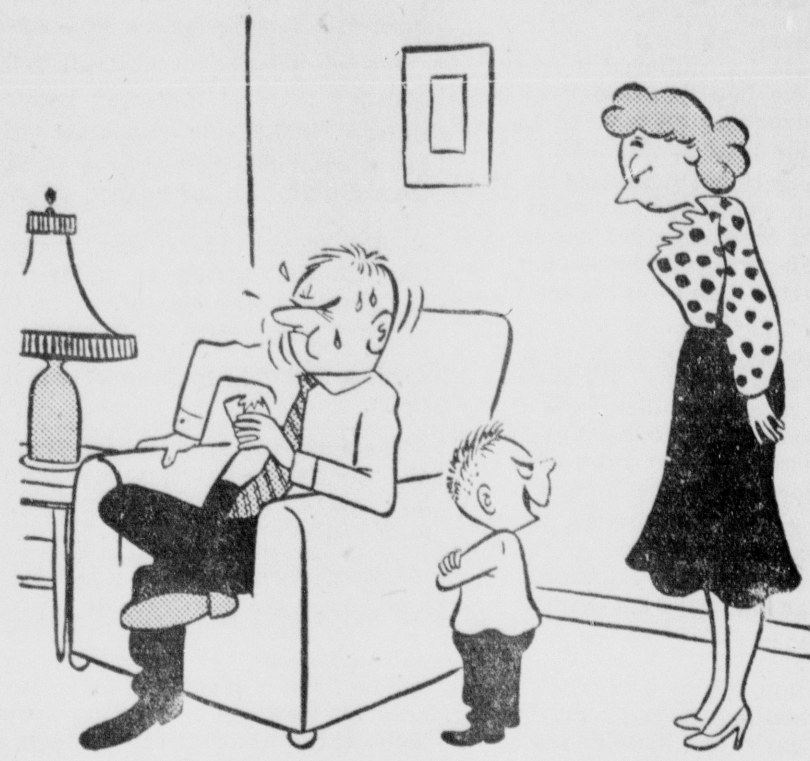

The United States has assumed a marked responsibility for Western Germany. Both President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles intervened in the West German election. Almost on the eve of the election, Dulles delivered his now famous speech before the American Legion, followed by a press interview, establishing American interest in the victory of Adenauer. The internationalist press in this country attacked Dulles's speech as being inept and likely to bring on the defeat of Adenauer. They were proved by events to have been incorrect in their judgment and propagandistic in their objectives.

Actually, the Eisenhower-Dulles program of putting their cards on the table for all to see has proved to be correct. It may not suit the British or the French that we should support a distinctly anti-Russian government in West Germany, but the German people have established in this election that their attitude is the same as ours.

Anti-Venom for Snake Bite

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE bite of the female spider is more dangerous than that of the male. Although the bites of most spiders are not injurious, a few are poisonous.

The black widow is the worst offender. Most cases of spider bites occur in the southern United States but the black widow spider has been found in most northern cities and in practically any location. The female black widow has a coal black body about half an inch long. There are red or orange hour glass markings on it.

Pain Disappears

Men are the most frequent victims of the bites, with over two-thirds of the bites occurring around the reproductive organs. The sting of the black widow spider produces a sharp pain over the area bitten. The pain generally disappears four to five hours later.

About fifteen to thirty minutes after the bite, the patient develops severe abdominal pain which can be mistaken for abdominal diseases such as appendicitis, especially if there is no knowledge of the bite having occurred. There is a great weakness, tremors of the body and severe pain in the arms and legs. Later, the venom of the spider can cause a feeble pulse, labored breathing, and even stupor.

Anti-Venom Developed

Unlike snake bites, local treatment of spider bites is valueless. Injections of calcium are helpful in controlling the pain. There has been an anti-venom developed which counteracts the poison of the spider and which is quite effective working against the disease. However, convalescence may be prolonged for weeks. It has been found that cortisone and ACTH are helpful in treating the severe symptoms accompanying the spider bite.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

V. B.: Would it be possible for me to have a sandpaper operation to remove blotches and small holes left by a skin disease which has been cured?

Answer: This depends upon the type of skin disease. Certain cases of acne scars have been benefited by the sandpaper treatment.

The Velvet HAND

SYNOPSIS

Philip Haven's niece, Libby, was missing from the house when Philip returned home to Connecticut, after a long absence in Mexico. Libby had left a note in her room urging the family not to worry, promising they'd hear from her soon. Her cousin Kit and Hugo Cavanaugh, an attorney, once devoted to Kit but now Libby's sworn enemy, start out to find the missing girl. They visit the meagre New York apartment of Tony Wilder, a classically handsome young man of whom Libby had become enamored. But Tony, like Libby, is nowhere to be found. They proceed to the uptown home of Eleanor Oaks, a blithering and fabled lady, who seems greatly agitated when Kit suggests that Tony and Libby may have eloped. Samuel Pedrick, a tall, macabre figure, is present as they chat. Her search fruitless, Kit returns to the Connecticut house. Hugo tells her that the wraith-like Pedrick is a figure well-known in the New York underworld. Late that night Kit discovers a light left burning in the kitchen, but reaching it she finds the room empty, the kettle singing merrily on the stove, a window open, a garden ladder leaning beneath the window of Libby's room.

CHAPTER NINE

KIT RAN to the window of the empty study and thrust her head and shoulders over the sill. The stars were bright and there was a slice of moon low in the sky. The lawns, the sycamore, the stone walls—you could see clean to the edge of the orchard. Nothing moved. There was no one in sight. Kit shut and locked the window and started for the stairs fast.

Mounting, she slowed. Philip might have left his window open, but he couldn't have placed the chair against the door from the inside. Undoubtedly someone had broken into the study. Her uncle was tired and needed sleep, but she'd have to get someone to help her make the rounds and see whether anything else was wrong. Hugo wasn't to be thought of. She pulled her robe tighter around her and tied the sash. William, then. She went along the upper hall and was about to knock on William's door when the door of the other guest room opened and Hugo stuck his head out. His hair was rumpled, his eyes bright.

"Kit! What is it? What's the trouble?"

She said: "Someone has been downstairs in Philip's study."

Inside her room Miriam snored softly. She had an even, rhythmic snore.

Hugo said softly: "Half a minute and I'll be with you."

He retreated, pulled on trousers and a coat, and joined her. The study was just as she had left it, and as always neat and in order. Nothing had been disturbed. All the other downstairs windows with in reach, in the hall and the dining-room, were closed and locked. They went into the kitchen. The doors and windows there and in the pantry and in the entryway were secure.

Hugo shrugged. "If there was someone here—"

Kit said: "My dear man, there was someone here. Chairs don't put themselves on the insides of doors." She pointed. "Kettles don't boil unless someone turns the gas on under them, nor do ceiling lights come on by themselves."

Hugo smiled at her. "Suppose the maid left the light on and for—" got to turn off the gas. Let's see how much water there is in this." He hefted the kettle. "Very little. All right, I know it doesn't explain the chair in your uncle's study. So there was someone here, and whoever it was is gone. As far as I can see nothing seems to have been taken. I'll turn the lights off and stick around for a return visit. You'd better go back to bed or you'll catch cold."

Kit was sniffling with cold, and reaction. "Maybe I'd better call William and he can help."

Hugo put up a hand. "Heaven forbid." At his expression, she laughed and retreated.

She slept late the next morning. It was after 9 when the sound of the power mower awoke her. It was William, guiding the new machine over the grass, just as later he would go for a 10-mile walk for his health and after that take Miriam for a drive in the big car, whether her uncle wanted it or not. At least, that was William's usual routine when he came to Denfield on week-ends. Routine? Nothing was routine now.

Dressing hastily, she went downstairs. George had gone back to New York. He had left a message with the maid saying that he'd call Kit later. Hugo had probably gone, too. He wasn't anywhere around. Evidently the intruder of the night before had not returned. Philip was in his study working. She would tell him about last night as soon as his typewriter stopped pounding. She was drinking coffee on the sun porch when William came tramping dolefully into the house with a tale of broken bushes and nurseries.

"Those bushes should be charged to them. They should be made to pay."

Kit said: "For heaven's sake, William, who cares about a few bridal wreaths? There are masses of them anyhow."

"Not the bridal wreaths," William said, "the rhododendrons, under Libby's window."

Kit was outside in record time. They went around to the west wing. "See?" William waved. He was right. Someone had plucked roughly through the thick planting of rhododendrons directly under Libby's window, the one to the north. Branches hung brokenly. Staring at the crushed leaves, the fresh breaks, Kit was puzzled. Philip's study was at the other end of the house. You might have expected damaged shrubbery outside the window there if someone had jumped through it last night, but here—she pushed rhododendron branches aside. In the soft earth, a little out from the wall, there were two deep indentations. They had been made by a ladder. The ladder was there on its side, 10 feet farther along.

William said: "I told you so. It was those nurseries. They broke those valuable bushes and they should be made to pay."

"Beg pardon, mister?"

One of the nurseries had approached, unheard. He had come for the ladder; the rest of the dead wood on the apple trees at the edge of the orchard had to be pruned. The man, Joe Gauntlett, had put the ladder where it now was before leaving yesterday. He looked at the ladder. "Yes, I put it here—but not the way it is now. The other side was top. Someone must have been fooling around with it after we went, that's how the bushes got broken. Yes sir, someone stood that ladder up against that wall and broke them branches. Not me."

A ladder against the house in the night, a ladder that must from the marks in the ground, have rested under Libby's window. Kit ran inside and up the stairs with William at her heels. Miriam heard them and hailed William. She wanted him to take the car and go to the drug store and get her new medicine. "I phoned the druggist and it's ready."

"Just a minute, aunt," William called back. "There's something that needs attention—"

Miriam said: "I need your attention—now. My water pitcher's empty and I want it filled."

William stood still. He had always seemed devoted to his demanding—and perhaps wealthy— aunt. Swinging around the end of the stair railing, Kit caught a glimpse of his face. It was livid. He went toward Miriam's room, his head bent, his shoulders slumped. He looked as though he could wring Miriam's neck. Interesting. Kit had no time for it then. She ran on to the end of the hall and around the jog and opened Libby's door.

The north window was down, the one below which the ladder had rested, and nothing seemed to have been disturbed. She could no longer smell the perfume but the air was stale. Kit started across the floor and stood stock-still in the middle of it.

Lying on the white rug, beyond the foot of the bed was what looked like a decapitated human head, face down, a woman's head with a hat on it. It was one of Libby's hat stands. The hat on it was a cherry-colored straw cloche with navy striped streamers that Kit had never seen before. The round red crown was split wide open by a blow that had all but crushed the papier-mache head beneath it. The weapon that had been used, a hammer, was on the rug beside the smashed head.

Kit stared down at the thing at her feet, pushing away sickness and an odd sort of terror and trying to make her reason work. Who could have done such a thing—and why? It looked like hatred pure and simple, a hatred revenging itself symbolically on a Libby who was out of reach.

It was also a piece of exhibitionism crying out to be noticed. "I hate her, do you understand. I hate her. This is what I would do to her if I could." Unbridled rage on the spur of the moment, had it been the spur of the moment. In the dead of night someone had felt around for the ladder in darkness, had propped it against the house wall and had climbed rung by rung.

news behind

the news

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11—Uncle Sam's land-grabbing proclivities are now under scrutiny by several top Eisenhower agencies, and property worth hundreds of millions of dollars may eventually be returned to the dwindling tax rolls of complaining states, counties and cities. It will be an indirect form of tax reduction to millions of individuals.

The vast holdings, which comprise an area almost three times the size of Texas, have been accumulated in a haphazard, unbusinesslike way. There has never been a central, land-coordinating agency at Washington. Until now, there has never been a survey to obtain a cost-and-loss inventory.

Uncle Sam is, perhaps, the only landlord who does not know how much property he owns, where it is located, how much it is worth, or how much he can turn back to its original owners with mutual benefits.

A special panel of the Hoover Reorganizing Commission is now studying the problem, and will report to the next session of Congress. The committee set up by Eisenhower to examine federal-state relationships has also tackled it.

HOLDINGS—The Interior Department has been the principal agent in the acquisition of land, buildings and equipment. In the 11 western states, it now holds more than 60 per cent of the total area, reaching as high as 85 per cent in Nevada.

Under its conservation policy, the Department of Interior has appropriated forests, grazing and mineral land, vast water-power resources, national parks, etc. It has constantly increased its domain in the last 20 years on the ground that the government must thwart ruthless and predatory exploitation by the "interests."

In the process, however, it has sometimes expanded simply for the sake of power and expansion. It has irrigated worthless land, and caused heavy losses to homesteaders, including veterans. It has adopted a dog-in-the-manger attitude toward needed, private development of these locked-up resources, according to its critics.

LAND-GRABBERS—Federal landlordism, once only a western concern, has now become a national problem as a result of defense expansion during and since World War II. The military rank second only to Interior as Washington's most rapacious land-grabbers, especially along the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific Seaboard. And they resort to court-martial tactics when they take it into their head that they need property, giving no consideration to local interests, public or private.

From Maine to Miami, on the coast and inland to great depth, they have commandeered choice sites. They harass such important industries as fishing, shipping, beach resorts, recreation, valuable real estate developments and coastal plants. They bid up prices for land required by communities for their water supply, suburban outlets, parks and schools.

TAKEN OVER—Urban expansion has cramped cities and aggravated management problems. The military and other agencies have taken over office buildings, warehouses, parking areas, railroad facilities, airports, etc. In many communities the telephone books need several pages to list only the federal numbers. The area around Washington and other great centers has been transformed into a military reservation.

Along the Potomac and Chesapeake Bay the services retain title to forts built during the Revolution, when British gunboats could navigate upstream to Washington and Baltimore. Many are now used only as country clubs, yacht basins and picnicking grounds.

Opponents of a review and revision of Uncle Sam's holdings denounce it as a "giveaway" program. It may be a major political issue next year, especially in the West, which gave all its electoral votes to Ike last year. Democrats count on it as a winning issue. But the Hoover group believes it will find millions of dollars worth of property which should not have been rendered unto Caesar.

Flower Show Scheduled At Pickaway County Fair

500 Entries May Be Entered Here

Banks of beautiful flowers will greet patrons of the 1953 Pickaway County Fair.

Mrs. Harry C. Kern, a director of this year's fair flower show, said approximately 500 entries may be expected in that department this year.

The flower show is to be presented in four sections: quality of flowers; artistic arrangement; junior gardeners; and specials.

Almost all of the county's gardeners are expected to enter this year's show, which has increased its premiums to the level offered two years ago. Last year's show was somewhat hampered when prizes were diminished by about 25 per cent.

Competition is expected to be keen more importantly because of the high aims of the flower show, as graphically illustrated in the Fair premium book:

"To stimulate and encourage good gardening; to educate the public in the use of plant material in homes and gardens; for creative diversion and the appreciation of flowers and their places in our lives; and to set high ideals in good horticultural practice and good sportsmanship."

Members of the guiding committees of this year's fair flower show predict a large number of entries, although the heat wave and drought which ended only about 10 days ago may affect the total somewhat.

Judge for this year's flower show will be Mrs. Wade Cozad of Lancaster, regional director of district nine of the Ohio Association of Garden Clubs and chairman of the flower arrangement and judges school for the Ohio Association.

Serving with Mrs. Kern on the directing committee for the show are Mrs. Herman Porter, Mrs. William Cook and Mrs. Lee Downs. Assisting is Miss Mary Drake, county contact chairman.

Goal of exhibitors will be found in the special awards department. A prize of $5 is offered to the club which places first in "Our Heritage" theme along the sesquicentennial line; and $5 for the individual winning the largest number of blue ribbons on artistic arrangements.

Entries in all classes must be in place by noon Thursday and may not be removed until after 4 p. m. Saturday.

Rules and regulations for the flower show may be found in the Fair premium booklet.

There's Still No Report On Heroic Major

Yankee Missing 3
Years After Death
March From Seoul

WASHINGTON (AP) — Operation Big Switch has ended in Korea and still there is no word of what happened to "The Major"—the hero of a Communist-ordered death march from Seoul in the early days of the war.

His wife is still waiting after three years for someone, somewhere to end the terrible suspense of not knowing.

She is like thousands of other Americans who had a husband or a son or a father among the almost 8,000 men missing in action. She had hoped her man was still alive and would be among those freed.

Now she hopes there is someone among the returning prisoners who will be able to tell her the fate of her husband. There are undoubtedly hundreds of others with similar hopes.

Here is the beginning of the major's story. Perhaps someone among the returning prisoners might yet be able to write an ending.

The major is William Thomas McDaniel of Aoshkie, N. C. and Albany, Ga. He was stationed at Camp Haugen in northern Honshu Japan, when the war began. He was 35 years old, a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy in the class of 1941. He lived at Camp Haugen with his 27-year-old wife Helen and his two sons—then 4 and 3.

The war had been under way only a few days when McDaniel was ordered into Korea with the 24th Infantry Division. He told his wife it would be best for her to take the children home to North Carolina until he could join them. A few days after he left, Mrs. McDaniel received a letter. The major told her not to worry. Everything was going to be all right.

McDaniel reached the front about July 15, 1950. Elements of his division—commanded by Maj. Gen. William Dean—were fighting a desperate battle for time around Taejon. The Reds had overrun part of the artillery. Even Gen. Dean was down with his troops shooting at tanks.

McDaniel led a foray to recapture howitzers overrun by the Reds. He did, leading his men through a gantlet of enemy fire. And then McDaniel was captured only five days after he entered the fight. He never knew he won the Silver Star for his bravery and a promotion to the rank of lieutenant colonel.

About three months later, we heard the story of McDaniel from survivors of a Red massacre at a railroad tunnel near the little town of Suncheon in North Korea.

The boys who escaped the massacre knew McDaniel only as "The Major."

"He was a wonderful guy," one of them said. "The major risked his own neck to get better treatment for us. He always gave us part of his food and shared his cigarettes and he took care of us as best he could."

McDaniel was forced to march from Seoul to Pyongyang with a prisoner group. Whenever a prisoner died on this death march—died of illness or a Red bullet in the head—the major insisted on a Christian burial. He refused to go on until he had said a prayer over the grave. In each grave he left a bottle containing the name and serial number of the dead man.

A survivor said: "We never would have made it except for the major." And others who escaped agreed.

It was in October 1950 that the Reds put McDaniel and other pris-

Courage for Christian Living

ENDURE HARDSHIPS AS A GOOD SOLDIER OF CHRIST

Scripture—II Timothy 1:3-14; 2:1-15.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

FEAR is a primitive feeling we share with all living things. An infant has a fear of falling, we are told, and all through life fears assail us. The person who has conquered fear and faces life with serenity is rare indeed.

St. Paul, in close confinement, knowing that death—and a painful one—was near, thought, not of himself, but of his adopted son and disciple, Timothy, who, he prayed, would live to carry on his work and teach others to take over after he, too, had passed on.

Fear is rampant in our modern world, and we hear many voices of those who warn us daily of the possible perils ahead. But there are also in the world hope and faith, a courage to face whatever disaster and danger come our way, and bear them bravely if we cannot overcome them.

Ministers of the gospel (bless them!) if they are true to their calling, help to banish fear and to keep faith alive. They preach from our pulpits; they follow our armed forces into the very midst of battles and help them to endure and to do their duty like men, and comfort the sorrowing.

Paul writes to Timothy once more how he prays for him without ceasing. "Greatly desiring to see thee, being mindful of thy tears, that I may be filled with joy."

"When I call to remembrance the unfeigned faith that is in thee, which dwelt first in thy grandmother, Lois, and thy mother, Eunice, and I am persuaded that in thee also."

Paul had known the two women of whom he speaks—Timothy's grandmother and mother. He had known Timothy as a boy in his home, and he realizes what trials and possible death at the hands of enemies of the faith Timothy faces, and writes to tell him of his (Paul's) faith in him and encourage him to face what may be in store for him.

"For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind."

"Be not thou therefore ashamed of the testimony of our Lord, nor of me his prisoner; but be thou partaker of the afflictions of the gospel according to the power of God; who hath saved us, and called us with an holy calling, not according to our works, but according to His own purpose and grace, which was given us in Christ Jesus before the world began."

How touched Timothy must have been by Paul's words of encouragement to him when Paul was in such dire peril. Timothy must have loved Paul like a son his father, for Paul speaks of Timothy's tears—probably when they parted.

"Thou, therefore, my son, be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus. And the things that thou hast heard of me among many witnesses, the same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also."

"Thou therefore endure hardness, as a good soldier of Christ."

"No man that warreth entangleth himself with the affairs of this life; that he may please him who hath chosen him to be a soldier."

"And if a man also strive for masteries, yet he is not crowned, except he strive lawfully."

Paul is thinking again of an athletic conquest—comparing it to the race of life.

"Consider what I say; and the Lord give thee understanding in all things."

This lesson is an excellent one for ministers of the gospel to study. They too, have their discouragements and fears, but reading Paul's words, they must take courage and be heartened to continue to be good soldiers in Christ.

Children can get much good from his words, too. They all know what soldiers are, what dangers they must face. Some of them may have brothers in the armed services; they may have lost a brother in a war. Mothers tell their children to be good soldiers, too, and not let their hurts and disappointments make them cry or grow angry.

As Paul "endured all things for the elect's sakes" we too may "also obtain the salvation which is in Christ Jesus with eternal glory; for if we be dead in Him, we shall also live with Him; if we suffer, we shall also reign with Him."

And finally, "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

oners on a train which was to carry them from Pyongyang to Manchuria. U. S. bombers attacked the train and it stopped in a tunnel to wait for the shield of darkness. And there the Communist guards decided to kill their prisoners.

At dusk the guards told McDaniel to come with them—that they were going to get food for the prisoners. The major left the train with his captors.

Then the guards took the other Americans from the train in three groups. As the boys sat in the fields with their rice bowls in their hands, waiting to be fed, the guards opened fire. We found 68 bodies. Somehow 22 youths survived that night of horror. And they told the story of the major.

"We never saw the major after he left the train," one youth said. "We don't know what happened to him."

For three years Mrs. McDaniel has been hoping someone will be able to tell her whether the major still lives—or what happened at the tunnel after he left the train.

She is living now in Williamsburg, Va. Both McDaniel boys, Tom and John, are old enough to go to school this year. And Mrs. McDaniel has decided to get a job.

"For a long time I couldn't bear to talk about what happened," she says. "But finally I knew I had to face reality. I still hope there will be someone coming back who can tell me something. Anything is better than this."

Guaranteed Annual Wage Next Demand

Major Job Security Strategy Is Mapped By Labor Unions

NEW YORK (AP)—Annual wages for the factory worker as well as the white collar man could be the next big—and possibly bitter—battle in the labor field.

The tip-off that job security is coming to top higher hourly pay rates in the recent break in the stock market. It has multiplied hiters over a feared dip later on in production, and therefore in jobs, in basic industries such as steel, autos and appliances.

Should such a dip materialize it means layoffs. And labor leaders realize their men can't make their new and higher wage scales go far at the grocery store if the factory is shut down.

In previous years, with the economy on the upgrade, labor negotiators asked for the guaranteed annual wage, but they settled for wage increases instead. Now they are more nervous about layoffs.

But if it thinks a slump is coming, management naturally is going to be just that less willing to commit itself to paying for a year's work if the work may not be done.

Walter Reuther has given notice he'll ask for a guaranteed annual wage for his CIO United Auto Workers.

"When a company has to pay a guaranteed annual wage," he argues, "it will do something about stopping layoffs." He sees production falling and layoffs the order of the day "if the purchasing power of the people isn't increased."

Management has its stake in steady production, too. Full production schedules every working day make for complete and efficient use of a company's facilities, as the American Institute of Management, of New York, points out. It holds: "Unemployment and uncertainty are factors too large for managements interested in survival to take lightly any longer."

The institute sees both advantages and disadvantages in an annual wage for production workers.

If the peaks and valleys of production and employment can be leveled off, the loss of idle machinery is cut. Stabilization also reduces the risk of high labor turnover and the cost of training new workers. The institute also suggests the guarantee might increase productivity by removing worry.

But it says there's also the chance that job insecurity leaves workers to work harder to keep a job. Other disadvantages it mentions are that the guarantee's fixed costs would raise the break-even point in many industries and increase the mortality rate of businesses.

And, of course, a serious recession could mean a drop in demand for the company's products that would dry up the sales out of which the fixed annual wages would have to be paid.

Patrol To Shelve 60 Motorcycles

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio Highway Patrol, once more than 80 percent a motorcycle corps, is eliminating the glamour vehicle of police traffic squads.

Col. George Mingle, patrol superintendent, said that 60 patrol motorcycles will be replaced by other motorized equipment. A couple of cycles will be kept for parades and other use, he added.

The patrol gave three major reasons for replacing the motorcycle: 1—Lack of two-way communications. 2—Meager utilitarian service. 3—Driving hazards.

Small North Sea Town Lives On Flotsam Of Shipwrecks

RANTUM-SYLT, Germany (AP)—The tragic harvest of shipwreck at sea goes into the thatched roof cottages of this tiny fishing village on the north German island of Sylt. Window shutters here are made of ship planks washed ashore. Carved figureheads of forgotten three-masters and ancient brass cabin lanterns decorate its driftwood homes.

For centuries this small community behind the North Sea dikes has lived on the flotsam of shipwreck. After heavy gales the young and old of Rantum walk the windswept beaches looking for whatever the sea has cast up with the tide.

Landlubbers may say it's a mean way to make a living, but Andreas Nissen, Rantum's shore bailiff, only shrugs and says, "Somebody's death is somebody's bread."

Nissen's cottage, built two centuries ago and shipshape from thatched roof to tarred cellar, is solid evidence of the days when beachcombing was a really lucrative enterprise. Every part of its dark sturdy woodwork has a story of its own. A medieval figurehead over the gable window was sawed off the bow of an ill-fated Dutch merchant ship.

Truck Route Here Now Is Rerouted

A truck route establishing an alternate lane of travel for traffic east and west on Route 22 over the Scioto River Bridge here has been rerouted again.

State highway department officials have reduced the total load and axle limit on the Main St. bridge here by 50 per cent, with an eye on strengthening the structure.

Truck traffic east and west through Chillicothe first was routed through Chillicothe. Road work in Chillicothe now has forced the truck route north.

Highway officials said the new truck route for west traffic through here will go north on Route 23 to Frank Road, just south of Columbus, west to Route 104 and then south to Route 22. The reverse applies for east-bound trucks.

Auto traffic is expected to be maintained when workmen begin work on the bridge here in the near future.

THE M. HAMM CO.

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE, OHIO

This demonstration was worth many hundreds of dollars to me!

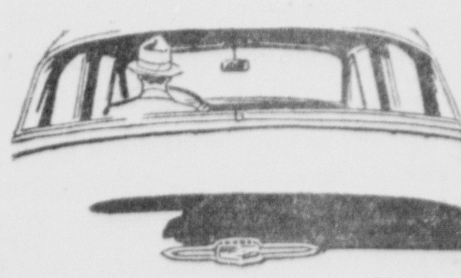

I thought only a higher-priced car would suit me. But then I found out how much more Chevrolet offered for how much less!

You're "sitting pretty" behind the wheel Take this Bel Air model. First thing you'll notice is the rich-looking upholstery and appointments and roomy, comfortable seats. Just turn the ignition key to start the engine and you're ready to go.

You get more power on less gas Here's all the power and performance you could ever ask for. And along with it comes the most important gain in economy in Chevrolet history! That's because of Chevrolet's two great high-compression engines.

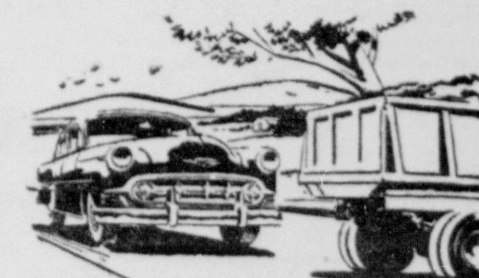

You can see all around You look out and down at the road through a wide, curved, one-piece windshield. The panoramic rear window and big side windows provide a clear view in all directions.

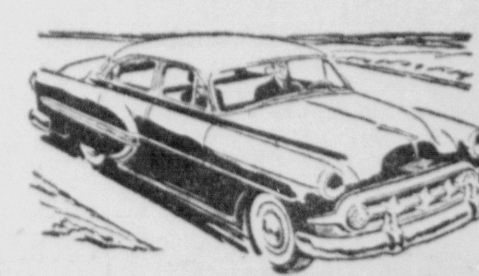

You get greater getaway with the new Powerglide* Finer performance on less gas. That's what you get with the new Powerglide. There's no more advanced automatic transmission at any price.

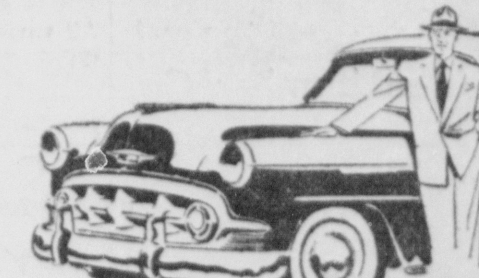

Even Power Steering, if you want it You ought to try Power Steering to see how easy driving can be. You can spin the wheel with one finger! It's optional, of course, at extra cost, and available on all models.

Biggest brakes for smoother, easier stops An easy nudge on the brake pedal brings smooth, positive response—right now! Chevrolet's brakes are the largest in the low-price field—extra large for extra stopping power.

It's heavier for better roadability You're in for a pleasant surprise at the smooth, steady ride. One reason is that, model for model, Chevrolet will weigh up to 200 pounds more than other low-priced cars.

And it's the lowest-priced line A demonstration will show you that Chevrolet offers more in the lowest-priced line in the low-price field.

*Combination of Powerglide automatic transmission and 115-h.p. "Blue-Flame" engine optional on "Two-Ten" and Bel Air models at extra cost.

Let us demonstrate all the advantages of buying a Chevrolet now!

Squirrel Season Begins Tuesday

Pickaway County nimrods will have their first chance to unload their rifles and shotguns beginning at dawn Tuesday when the 1953 squirrel season begins.

Clarence Francis, county game protector, said this year's squirrel season will begin at dawn Tuesday and continue until dusk of Oct. 15.

This year's squirrel hunting season promises to be a good one, especially where water is available. The bag limit is four and each licensed hunter may have four squirrels in possession after opening day.

Hunters are reminded that everyone hunting on lands which he does not own will be required to have new 1953 hunting licenses. Persons who have lived in Ohio less than one full year must obtain non-resident licenses.

1953 County Fair To Begin Here Wednesday

4-Day Show Offers Many Top Attractions

Junior Fair Set To Be Largest In Fair History

Pickaway County's 1953 Fair will open its gates today to the general public for four big days beginning Wednesday at the fairgrounds in Circleville.

Fairgoers this year are offered many stellar events during the four-day agricultural exposition.

Chief among these, of course, will be the proof of the excellence of the county as an agricultural center, with prime livestock, luscious fruits and vegetables, rich grains and beautiful flowers.

But the biggest display at this year's extravaganza on the fairgrounds will be the display of the abilities of the young folks of the county—the community's future farmers and homemakers.

THIS YEAR'S junior fair will be the largest in history, with a record-breaking number of entries in almost all departments.

Livestock will be one of the top features, with competition to be keen in all departments—steers, beef breeding, dairy cattle, swine, sheep, and even poultry and rabbits. All of the livestock is to be kept sheltered adjacent to the showbarn, where judging will be held.

A center of activity will be the coliseum, where girls in 4-H Club work will display their accomplishments in booths.

Also in the coliseum will be the fruit, grain and vegetable displays, flower show, Boy Scout and school exhibits, FFA displays and the work of the juvenile Granges.

Another chief center of activity will be the midway, booked again this year by the Circleville Junior Chamber of Commerce. Included on the midway in addition to regular concessions will be food booths operated by local organizations and seven big events for the youngsters—seven "Happy Attractions" rides. The rides include the Ferris wheel, merry-go-round, a swing ride, a fun house, two kiddie rides and a live pony ride.

But the biggest center of attraction will be the fairgrounds grandstand, where at least two big events are scheduled for every day of the 1953 Fair.

BOARING, spitting motors in the AMA sanctioned motorcycle races at 2 p. m. Wednesday will herald the grandstand attractions. Nine thrilling races are planned for opening day fairgoers.

Second big attraction Wednesday will be at 7:30 p. m., a western horse show and rodeo presented by direction of the Ashville Riding Club.

Thursday's big grandstand events begin at 10:30 a. m. with the increasingly popular tractor-pull contest. Five separate classes of competition—by weight—are offered during the contest.

One of the feature events of the fair will be at 7:30 p. m. Thursday when the band and music festival will be held, presenting more than a dozen bands in concert.

Three special programs are planned at the grandstand Friday. First will be a machinery parade at about 1 p. m., presented by the implement dealers of the county who will show some of the newest and finest machinery on the market.

A brand new event—running horse races—will be offered at 2 p. m., admission free. The special races, six carded for the afternoon, will feature any horsemen of the county who wish to enter their steeds for cash prizes.

AT 7:30 p. m. Friday will be the ever-popular spine-tingler, the Lucky Lee Lott Auto Thrill Show.

Wrapping up the 1953 Fair on Saturday will be five special grandstand attractions.

First of the events will be at 11 a. m., when all of the livestock exhibited in junior fair competition is to be paraded before the grandstand.

Following the cattle parade will be a special children's program, sponsored by Circleville Lions Club. The children's program will feature games and races—to the amusement of the oldesters as much as the youngsters—and climaxed by a greased pig chase.

Any youngster of the county is eligible to chase the greased pig if he has a place to keep it.

At 2 p. m. Saturday will be a big stock car race, which has become one of the leading sports of the county since the track was opened last year at the fairgrounds.

Saturday evening will be devoted to the 4-H youngsters, beginning at 7 p. m. with a style revue and winding up with the annual livestock sale—when the grand champion steer, market lamb and market pig are to be auctioned.

In addition to all of the regular attractions, two fireworks programs are to be offered during this year's Fair. Fireworks are to be shot at the grandstand at 10 p. m. both Wednesday and Thursday nights. Each program probably will last almost half an hour.

Devereux Plans To Visit Wake

BALTIMORE (AP) — Brig. Gen. P. S. Devereux, now Republican congressman from Maryland's Second District, will return to Wake Island where he and a small garrison of Marines fought against the Japanese in World War II.

Devereux was the major in charge of some 500 men when the island fell to the Japanese Dec. 23, 1941. Before surrendering, the island defenders accounted for 29 enemy planes, a cruiser, two destroyers and an escort vessel.

Now a member of a House armed services subcommittee, Devereux will visit Wake on a round the world inspection junket beginning Sept. 16 and ending Nov. 10.

This Paper To Carry Story By Reporter Freed By Reds

NEW YORK (AP) — "That's not quite the way it was—"

William N. Oatis, AP correspondent freed by the Czechs after two years' imprisonment, was discussing an angle of his own story, due to appear in this newspaper beginning on Monday and running through Friday.

An editor, as editors will, had suggested perhaps a certain passage in Oatis' original draft was too long. Couldn't it be abridged by saying such-and-such?

"No," said Bill Oatis, "that's not quite the way it was."

He was insisting his own story, in every fact, his own story. He insisted on that throughout the several weeks he was at work on the series of articles.

Oatis started preliminary work on the story while he was still undergoing medical treatment. Doctors suspected he had tuberculosis, aggravated by months in jail cells that many times were cold in winter. First he was forbidden to work; then the doctors said he could work one hour a day—no more.

"But they can't keep me from thinking the other 23 hours," he said at the time. Many of those hours he spent searching his memory along the tortuous route he had followed. He had taken no notes out of prison. He had only his own reporter-trained memory to go by.

There were things to look into, too. Oatis needed detailed maps of the Prague area, to orient himself. He had to study the transcript of the trial as it had been prepared by observers for the U. S. State Department (which denounced his trial as a travesty of justice). He wanted also to see the texts of some of the Czech laws that ostensibly provided the basis of the case against him. He referred frequently to a Czech dictionary, and called upon his own command of the language.

All this time Oatis was, in effect, back in prison. He could look out at the trees on the nearby Westchester Hills, but not venture among them. Doctor's orders.

Finally, after a month's treatment, the tests all showed negative. Oatis came down a broad highway alongside the Hudson River, one sunny afternoon, and took up life in a Manhattan apartment. There he was able to buckle down to serious work on his story. In the hospital he had dictated some preliminary material to his wife Laurabelle, seated before a typewriter at his bedside. Now he manned the "mill" himself, and he was back in the element.

When he entered newspaper work in Marion, Ind., 20 years before, he had never dreamed of writing such a story. Reporters are expected to report the news, not to make it. But here, through a sequence of unusual developments, he had a story of his own that needed to be told. And he insisted, as he went along, that it be as accurate and objective as he could make it. He changed many a word to get just the meaning he wanted. He rewrote many paragraphs in an effort to make the account as clear as possible.

Today the story is complete, and Oatis is looking into vacation time. Later he will undertake a new assignment for The Associated Press.

Sabres Ordered

YOUNGSTOWN (AP) — A fleet of F86 Sabrejets is scheduled to be stationed soon at the Air Force fighter-interceptor base of Youngstown Municipal Airport to replace F84 Thunderjets, an obsolete type.

Texan Claims National Post

MINERAL WELLS, Tex. (AP) — Wright Morrow of Houston reaffirmed last night his claim to the post of Democratic national committeeman from Texas.

Morrow wrote a letter of resignation to the state Democratic Executive Committee last year when he joined Gov. Allan Shivers and other rebellious Texas Democrats in supporting Republican Dwight Eisenhower for president.

But the state committee turned down his resignation. National Chairman Stephen Mitchell, to whom Morrow had mailed a copy of his resignation letter, wrote Morrow "accepting" the resignation. Since then, both Morrow and Shivers have declared the national committee has no authority to act in the matter.

Society Honors Vet Farmers

TOPSFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Nine farmers with a total of 443 years in farming were honored by the Essex Agricultural Society yesterday at the Topsfield fair.

Among the nine was Mrs. Ellen Russell, 90, of Danvers, who has been farming for 57 years.

Boy Patrolman Saves Lass From Death

CHICAGO (AP) — James Carr, a 13-year-old school patrol boy, snatched a frightened 12-year-old girl from under the wheels of a moving Rock Island Railroad passenger train yesterday.

James, who patrols a crossing on the far southwest side, said four girls were on the tracks when he noticed a suburban train approaching. He chased three of them off the track but the fourth, Kathleen Serafin, told him, "I can't make it, I'm sick."

Kathleen fell as James attempted to drag her off the track and her legs still were lying across the track as the train neared.

Engineer Harold Willet told of the rescue.

"I was making an emergency stop when I saw the boy dart back and pull the girl's leg away in just the split second before the wheels of my engine reached the spot. That was a brave boy."

"I didn't do anything much," James told police in relating the incident. "That's what they gave me this white belt for."
